K. C. Pools for Rome
Why the Chinese Fight
Don't Spoil Your Husband
How to Use Copper

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1921.

Yesterday at San Francisco the Knights of Columbus ended a most successful convention, representing eight hundred thousand members, a powerful, well-managed organization.

The next enterprise of the Knights, according to Mr. Kennedy, their very energetic young publicity man, will be the building of a great American social centre in Rome as a tribute to the Pope, and also as a protest against the alleged efforts of the American Young Men's Christian Association and the Methodist Church to convert Italians from their ancient religion.

Mr. Kennedy says that with swimming pools and other material attractions Protestant propagandists in Rome seek to wean Italian children from their faith.

The Knights of Columbus will acquire on one of the hills of Rome an ancient palace. They also will install swimming pools, all the modern comforts and athletic amusements for the young.

All this is good news. It is not for a layman to say what religion is best, or what religious experts should do. But any man can see that it is an admirable and long step from the baths of Caracalla to the competing baths of the Y. M. C. A. and of the K. C. open to all.

And whatever the rights and wrongs of religious discussion, we know that civilization is going ahead, and divine wisdom that rules the world is demonstrating itself anew, when conflicting religious opinions result in the establishment of free baths. They used to produce results much less pleasant for some of THOSE concerned.

Last evening you read the headline, "Chinese Battling on Ten-Mile Front." One part of China fights another part of China. So it has been with peaceful intervals under powerful rulers for ages. As in Russia, so in China. Many different languages, men from one part cannot understand those from another.

When a learned Chinese lady visited Theodore Roosevelt, and invited friends to dinner in a Chinese restaurant, she and the Chinese waiters were compelled to speak to each other in English. The waiters could not understand one word that the educated Chinese woman said.

Lack of understanding is the trouble between different provinces in China, and lack of understanding is the trouble everywhere, for instance between different classes in this country, hating and fighting each other, not realizing that they all have the same interest, which is to raise as high as possible the AVERAGE well-being.

Mr. and Mrs. Bregard of San Francisco, discovering a large rift in the matrimonial lute, Mrs. Bregard decided to live away from her husband for six months or so, and see if "the love bird," as she poetically expressed it, would come flying back.

At the end of the "trial separation" the couple were reunited, but the missing bird apparently hadn't returned. After a few days, the husband went fishing, taking his motor. The wife discovered the motor parked, not beside the fishing pond, but in front of a young lady's house. The bird had gone to the wrong address apparently. Mrs. Bregard sues for separation.

Women make one great mistake. They are too unselfish and generous with their husbands at first, and the husbands do not appreciate it. No woman would give her husband roast quail every day for six hundred days. She would know well that he would go somewhere else for a small piece of corned beef.

When women spoil their husbands, treat them too much as though they were really appreciative human beings, then they are surprised when the husband "goes fishing" to the new address. The warning, "DON'T SPOIL YOUR HUSBAND WITH KINDNESS," should be everywhere elaborated, for woman's protection.

It is said that one billion pounds of copper are stored waiting for purchasers. Intelligent advertising might sell some of the copper if those that build houses were made to understand the value of copper roofs, gutters, leaders, etc. Men build houses, one part to last a hundred years, another, the tin roofing, gutters and water pipes, built to last four or five years, or less.

Also mosquito netting should be of copper, which lasts indefinitely. It might be worth while for big copper men to arrange the sale of their product, manufactured at reasonable prices. Now copper worth fifteen cents in bulk costs the consumer a dollar or more after five or ten cents' worth of labor per pound has been applied to it.

Eighty-five per cent. of this country's trouble is extravagant, extortionate, stupidly-managed distribution.

Pig iron produced in this country for July was lowest since 1903. That is getting back to "normalcy" evidently. While war was on it was stated in this column that with all the nations specializing in production of iron and steel, those industries in this country would go to smash, without complete tariff protection.

They are going to smash rapidly, and not in the United States only. Schwab is quoted to this effect:

WANTED IN ILLINOIS ON FRAUD CHARGE

Great Barrington Deputy Thinks He Is on Trail of Illinois Executive

The search for Governor Len Small of Illinois, who mysteriously disappeared while under indictments charging him with complicity in a $2,000,000 fraud plot against his home State, widened so as to include Massachusetts today.

Governor Small who was last seen in Chicago on July 28, was reported to be in hiding at Great Barrington.

Deputy Sheriff Frank A. Minkler of that town, admitted today that there "is a probability that the Illinois governor may be in Massachusetts. Further than that I cannot go."

But dispatches from Springfield, Ill., report that Minkler has sent the following letter to officials there:

"Will you tell me if there is a reward offered for Governor Len Small? I have a man under watch who resembles Small's picture, and he is keeping ready to move. This man and Small's picture have a resemblance that hardly can be mistaken. Will you let me know by return mail?"

Minkler forwarded a stamped envelope for immediate reply.

Over the telephone today Sheriff Minkler was questioned regarding his letter to the Illinois authorities and the man he says he has under observation.

He refused to discuss the matter, nor would he either confirm or deny the report that Governor Small has sought refuge in Massachusetts.

Small disappeared from Springfield, Ill., late last month after he had threatened to call out the State militia and declare martial law if the local police attempted to execute a warrant for his arrest.

VANISHED FROM CHICAGO.

Lieut. Gov. Fred. E. Sterling and Vernon Curtis of Grant Park, Ill., also indicted by the Sagamon County Grand Jury with Governor Small, are reported to be still in Illinois.

On July 27 Small arrived in Chicago and went to a small hotel downtown. He was discovered the following day while on his way to the office of the attorney in whose hands he intended to place his case.

Later he vanished from Chicago and the search for him rapidly widened as the police got traces of his movements in various parts of the country.

Small's indictment and the subsequent order for his arrest, followed by his flight, formed the climax of the desperate political fight that has been raging in Illinois between former Governor Lowden and Mayor William Hale Thompson, of Chicago, who personally selected Small as candidate for the governorship because of the latter's strength in the rural districts. Small ran 400,000 votes behind the Harding ticket last fall.

BOSTON FIREMAN HANGS SELF IN WOODSHED

Francis E. Merrill Found Dead by Son in Rear of Home at Mattapan

Francis E. Merrill of No. 62 River street, Mattapan, an assistant engineer of the Boston Fire Department attached to Engine 46 at Peabody square, Dorchester, committed suicide by hanging today, in the woodshed in the rear of his home.

The body was discovered suspended from a beam with a rope about the neck by the victim's son, Edwin M. Merrill.

Dr. Alexis L. Draper, of No. 1107 Washington street, Dorchester, who was called, said the man had been dead some time. Assistant Medical Examiner Waters was notified.

Merrill was a widower fifty years of age.

Neither members of the dead man's family nor his comrades at the fire station could assign any reason for the suicide. Captain Harry M. Hebard of the engine company stated that Merrill was at present on vacation and was due back next Monday.

According to a member of the family, Merrill arose early today and went into the woodshed, where he removed a portion of his clothing.

He is survived by five children.

STEINHAUSER IN 'SOLITARY' FOR FIGHTING

Former Police Officer Who Killed Louis Quitt Loses Deer Island Privileges

Bernard Steinhauser, former Boston police officer serving a sentence on Deer Island for the killing of Louis Quitt, of Medford, on April 30, is in solitary confinement in the prison for fighting.

George M. Harlow, master of the institution, today gave out the following statement regarding the events that led to the additional punishment of the former patrolman.

"Yesterday a large coal barge with a load of coal for the prison came to the wharf here.

"I called for volunteers to aid in the work of getting the coal on the island and Steinhauser was among those who offered his services.

"After finishing the job Steinhauser with the others returned to the prison buildings. There he encountered a fellow prisoner, a big bully of a man who is a drug addict.

"This prisoner has made trouble before and he began jeering at Steinhauser for volunteering to work. Steinhauser replied and in a few seconds the pair of them were fighting.

"Guards separated them and both were placed in solitary confinement for violation of the prison discipline. Steinhauser had no right to retaliate, but should have reported the taunts to the proper authorities."

FORD'S EYE ON VICTORY PLANT

Will Consider Proposal for Purchase of $15,000,000 Squantum Property

Mayor William A. Bradford of Quincy today announced that he had received a letter from the offices of Henry Ford in Detroit, to the effect that on Monday Mr. Ford would begin consideration of the proposal that the Ford Motor Company purchase the $15,000,000 Victory plant at Squantum.

Mr. Bradford has been in communication with the Ford interests relative to the purchase of the plant for some time, having heard that Ford was anxious to obtain a site for a big assembling plant on the Atlantic Coast.

The Victory plant was built by the government during the war and since the armistice has been used as a torpedo boat destroyer and submarine base.

FREIGHT CAR THIEVES SOUGHT IN HAVERHILL

GENERAL ELECTRIC PAY CUT

12½ Per Cent. Slash for Day Workers, 25 for Piece Hands, Stirs Men

A reduction in wages of 12½ per cent. for day workers and 25 per cent. for piece workers will be put into effect at the Lynn plant of the General Electric Company next Monday, according to semi-official information. Nine thousand workers will be affected.

The size of the cut now said to be contemplated came as a bombshell by the organized workers at the great plant. For fifteen weeks the company and representatives of organized and unorganized workers, have been conferring over wages, but it was never believed by the labor leaders that such a large cut was contemplated. Up to today it was felt the company would call for a 5 per cent. shaving in day workers' wages and 10 per cent. from the wages of piece workers.

The reduction to become effective next Monday will affect officials and shop foreman for the first time in the history of the plant. This action has been insisted upon by the labor leaders from the start. It was believed by the labor leaders that if the officials took a cut, the reduction workers would have to take would not be so large.

During the past few years, it is said, the union employes have been getting fewer and fewer. Today there was a rush of non-union employes to the labor headquarters to join the union.

The metal trades council will meet tonight at its headquarters in Market square to discuss the proposed reduction in wages. Electrical workers and other crafts meet during the coming week.

General Manager Richard H. Rice of the plant said today that the workers would have to accett the reduction or the plant would be closed. He said that the company cannot continue to operate under the present wage scale, because of lack of orders and competition.

CHARGE THREE SOUGHT TO AVENGE GIRL

A fourteen-year-old girl, her mother and her sixty-nine-year-old grandmother were in Lynn court today on charges of assault with dangerous weapons. They are said to have attacked the girl's uncle, Vincenzo Di Banzo, with knives.

Judge Kiel gave each a suspended sentence of a month in the house of correction. The women are Filomena Di Bonzi, Mrs. Juanita Di Bonzo and Mrs. Filomena Dorma. All live at No. 75 Cottage street, East Boston.

The women are said to have attacked Di Bonzo in the street and to have stabbed a bystander, Mrs. Andronetta De Bonis, when she tried to act as peacemaker.

DiBonzo, according to police records, was arested recently on a statutory charge in conection with his attentions to Filomena. He was refused permission to marry her by Judge Grant, in East Boston Court.

LAWYER'S CHECKS MISSING

Records of Payments in June, 1917, After Mishawum Revels Reported Thrown Away

Attorney-General J. Weston Allen, trying District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts before the Supreme Court for alleged malfeasance, subjected Tufts to a rigorous cross-examination today in an effort to force him to admit that he had at various times received money from Daniel H. Coakley.

He produced bank deposit and withdrawal slips in the endeavor to show that on several occasions Coakley withdrew large sums shortly before Tufts made equally large deposits.

"Do these deposit slips refresh your memory, whether you received money from Coakley?" asked the attorney-general.

Tufts reddened, bit his lip and leaning forward answered indignantly:

"I never borrowed or received one dollar from Daniel H. Coakley in all my life."

Attorney-General Allen calmly but persistently continued this line of questioning.

A minute later Tufts again showed some heat and said, "I have already told you, Mr. Allen, that I never got money from Coakley, regardless of his withdrawals."

Tufts was subjected to a particularly keen examination as to those withdrawals and deposits in 1917, shortly after the Mishawum Manor "Nero Circus" and alleged $100,000 holdup.

Attorney-General Allen created more excitement later when he said that not all of Coakley's checks for June, 1917, had been turned over to him. A lawyer from Coakley's office was unable to explain this, but said he had been told a clerk had through an error destroyed some of the old checks dating back to June, 1917.

ALLEN PERSISTENT.

Allen introduced in evidence slips to show that on one occasion Coakley withdrew "$5,000 and $1,000" from the Exchange Trust Company, and that Tufts shortly afterward put in $6,000 in that bank.

It was Allen's persistent reference to this coincidence that called forth Tufts' second show of temper.

TUFTS ANGRILY DENIES EVER RECEIVING MONEY FROM COAKLEY

CLASH COMES AS ALLEN PROBES HIS BANK DEPOSITS

Tufts was the second witness today and Attorney-General Allen immediately began his probe of the defendant's financial affairs.

He not only went into Tufts' deposits but to stock transactions in which it was assumed he acted for his mother and to the financial affairs of Tufts' father, who, the district attorney says, gave him about $28,000 in stock and cash before his death in 1918.

Allen even tried to put in a tax certificate. He said it would show that the elder Tufts, with $28,000 to give to his son, paid only a poll tax.

Attorney Fletcher Ranney objected. He said "a tax certificate was no index of a man's property."

There was a smile at this remark, but Chief Justice Rugg cut short the threatened maneuvering of counsel by excluding the tax certificate.

Allen did put in testimony to show that the elder Tufts, at the time he left the service of the Boston & Maine railroad and retired to his Fitchburg home, was getting $22.75 a week as a ticket taker.

Concerning the Coakley withdrawals and the Tufts deposits, some of them were early in June of 1917.

As it was in March, 1917, that the Mishawum Manor Nero Circus was held, and a few weeks later that Allen charges the motion picture men who attended it were "held up" for $100,000, the purport of this line of questioning was clear to both Tufts and the spectators.

Allen's first direct reference to Coakley was made in the following question:

"I call your attention to the fact that on June 15, 1917, Daniel H. Coakley drew from the Beacon Trust Company $9,250 and that you on June 15 deposited $4,060 in the Waltham Bank and on June 16, $5,025 in the Exchange Trust. Do these deposits refresh your recollection, whether you received this money from Coakley?"

SAW THE GOVERNOR.

Frank A. Brooks, chairman of the Parole Board, was called to the stand by Allen when court opened.

Q.—Did you call me on the telephone last night in reference to certain testimony in this trial? A.—Yes, when I had read certain news in the papers.

Q.—Was it in relation to a statement you made to District Attorney Tufts? A.—Yes. It concerned a statement made by Tufts that I had told the district attorney that you were making an investigation in the Corcoran case.

Q.—Did you make a statement that the Attorney-General was making an investigation, not on your request, but on his own account? A.—No.

Q.—Previous to writing to me had you seen the Governor? A.—Yes.

Q.—After conferring with the Governor did you refer the matter to my department as a result? A.—Yes.

Attorney-General Allen attempted to introduce a letter from the witness to him, but on objection by Attorney Fletcher Ranney for the defence it was excluded.

Q.—When you requested an investigation did you tell me you had had a conference with the Governor? A.—Yes.

Witness was not cross-examined.

TUFTS AGAIN.

District Attorney Tufts was called for a continuation of cross-examination in connection with the Byron H. Wilcox matter. In this case it is charged that he failed to present complete evidence against Wilcox, who was accused of receiving stolen goods.

Q.—By whom was the Wilcox case presented to the Grand Jury? A.—Sergeant Cody of Cambridge and Lieutenant O'Neil of Somerville.

Q.—Did you call the witnesses? A.—Yes.

Q.—You heard what was said there? A.—Yes.

Q.—Was it brought to the attention of the Grand Jury that this sugar had been stolen in 100 pound bags by boys in Cambridge and delivered to Wilcox? A.—I think so.

Q.—Were two of these Cambridge boys prosecuted? A.—My impression is they were.

Q.—Did their case come up in Superior Court? A.—I think so.

Q.—Didn't the investigation by a representative of the Boston & Maine railroad, from which the sugar was stolen, and the Somerville police disclose that these 100-pound bags had been bought of these boys and stored in the cellar of a friend of Wilcox? A.—I don't recall.

COULDN'T RECALL.

Q.—Was this presented to the Grand Jury? A.—I don't remember that it was. It may have been.

Q.—Didn't you learn from the inspector, before you presented the case, that this sugar was stored in 100 pound bags in the cellar and that Wilcox went there from time to time during the sugar shortage to get sugar for his own use? A.—I don't recall that information.

Q.—When the cases of those Cambridge boys came up in Superior Court did the judge not say he would not prosecute those boys when the man who was responsible and who had received the sugar was not before the court? A.—No.

Q.—You testified yesterday that Wilcox in an interview with you said he did not want to make restitution until he knew what was to be done with the case. A.—No, I think not.

Q.—Was the fact presented to the Grand Jury that the defendant would make restitution or had? A.—No.

Q.—Have you a record of the testimony before the Grand Jury? A.—I presume so.

Q.—You have testified that your father gave you 75 shares of telephone stock in 1911? A.—I thought about that time.

TRANSFERRED STOCK.

Q.—How did you fix the time? A.—He was taken ill while Mrs. Tufts and I were on a vacation, in August, 1911. He had to give up his work and sent for me shortly after that time. He wanted to turn that stock over to me. There was some talk he would be unable to get a pension from the railroad for which he had worked if he had any property in his own name.

Attorney-General Allen produced accounts from the American Bell Telephone Company and the American Telephone and Telegraph Company which showed various stock transactions carried on by Tufts, senior. They showed that on August 1, 1893, a certificate for thirty shares was issued to the elder Tufts. This was shortly after and in the same year Tufts, senior, sold his homestead to the city of Fitchburg as a school site. On July 17, 1896, he bought twenty shares more.

There were various other transactions in stock until January 28, 1911, when he transferred seventy-five shares of the eighty-five then in his possession to Nathan A. Tufts.

Q.—Does that refresh your memory that your father gave you the seventy-five shares on January 28, 1911? A.—No. That account is probably correct, however.

SOLD MOTHER'S STOCK.

Q.—Was your father ill in January, 1911? A.—He was stricken in 1910 and was seventy-five years of age. He was not well after that.

Q.—I call your attention to fifty shares of American Telephone stock, bought in the name of your mother, Mrs. Caroline Tufts, March 27, 1918. Did you invest money in your mother's account until March, 1917? A.—I have no recollection. I remember buying Liberty Bonds for her.

Q.—I see that on July 18, 1918, you sold your mother's telephone stock? Was that sold with stock of your own? A.—Undoubtedly.

Q.—And you had all the money placed to your own account? A.—I haven't any doubt about it.

Q.—The check was payable to you and deposited to your account? A.—Yes.

Allen introduced an application for pension, dated February 4, 1911, made by Joseph A. Tufts, the district attorney's father, and forwarded by Assistant Superintendent Smith to Superintendent Seaver of the Boston & Maine Railroad.

Smith wrote that Tufts' father had served continuously from 1865 up to 1911, the date of application, excepting two years which he served in the House of Representatives. He began as a freight clerk of the Vermont & Massachusetts Railroad and held various positions, including that of paymaster.

He closed his service as a ticket taker in Fitchburg. He lived at No. 411 Main street, Fitchburg.

$22.75 A WEEK.

The application blank showed that Tufts' father received $22.75 a week and that he had served on the Hoosac Tunnel and other committees while in the Legislature.

The blank stated "for use and income, $1,000." Attorney-General Allen called attention to the fact that that was the only property cited on the blank.

Tufts reached for the application and handled gently the blank which had been filled out by his father. He appeared moved by sight of the forgotten paper.

Q.—What was that $1,000 which your father stated he got an income from? A.—I imagine ten shares of telephone stock.

Q.—What became of the other shares?

"NEVER RECEIVED DOLLAR FROM COAKLEY"—TUFTS

District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts clashed with Attorney-General J. Weston Allen today at Tufts' trial when Allen tried to show that Tufts had received money from Attorney Daniel H. Coakley.

Q.—I call your attention to the fact that on June 13, 1917, Daniel H. Coakley drew from the Beacon Trust Company $9,250 and that you on June 15 deposited $4,060 in the Waltham bank and on June 16 $5,025 in the Exchange Trust. Do these deposits refresh your recollection whether you received this money from Coakley?

Tufts leaned forward. His face flushed. With intense indignation he said, "I never borrowed or received a dollar from Mr. Coakley in my life."

Q.—I call your attention to a deposit of yours on June 28 of $6,000 in the Exchange Trust Company. And to a withdrawal by Mr. Coakley from the Exchange Trust Company of $1,000 and $5,000? A.—I told you I never borrowed or received a dollar from Coakley, regardless of his withdrawals.

A.—He had 132 shares of telephone stock and sold all but 85. I don't know what became of that.

Q.—Did he sell stock in 1902? A.—I think so.

Allen offered a tax certificate made out to Joseph A. Tufts, to show he paid nothing but a poll tax. Attorney Ranney objected. He said a tax certificate was no index of a man's property. The tax certificate was excluded. Allen tried to have the court reconsider.

GRILLED ON DEPOSITS.

Chief Justice Rugg—Mr. Attorney-General, the Court does not think the original records would be competent.

Allen searchingly inquired of Tufts concerning his personal deposits in the Exchange Trust Company, the Waltham Trust Company and the Winchester Trust Company.

Allen called Tufts' attention to his previous testimony about depositing the sums of money given to him by his father, totalling $20,027, obtained from "the bureau drawer."

These amounts were: June 16, Exchange Trust, $5,025; June 28, $6,000, Waltham Trust, May 28, $5,000; June 15, $4,060.

Q.—I call your attention to the fact that on June 13, 1917, Daniel H. Coakley drew from the Beacon Trust Company $9,250 and that you on June 15 deposited $4,060 in the Waltham bank and on June 16 $5,025 in the Exchange Trust. Do these deposits refresh your recollection whether you received this money from Coakley?

NO MONEY FROM COAKLEY.

Tufts leaned forward. His face flushed. With intense indignation he said, "I never borrowed or received a dollar from Mr. Coakley in my life."

Q.—I call your attention to a deposit of your's on June 28 of $6,000 in the Exchange Trust Company. And to a withdrawal by Mr. Coakley from the Exchange Trust Company of $1,000 and $5,000? A.—I told you I never borrowed or received a dollar from Coakley, regardless of his withdrawals.

Q.—I call your attention to a deposit made by you August 9, 1919, in the Exchange Trust Company of $115 and three days later, August 12, $1,000, and $900 on August 8. Now, can you tell me from what source you received this money? A.—I can't recall offhand.

Q.—I call your attention to a deposit made by you on May 28, 1920, of $2,000 in bills, banded, in the Exchange Trust. Can you tell me what you received that $2,000 for? A.—I think I drew money out of the savings bank.

Q.—I call your attention to a deposit in the Exchange Trust Company on December 20, 1920, of banded bills amounting to $1,500? Do you recall where you received that money? A.—Yes, I remember that was part of the largest fee I ever got. It was paid to me by a client of mine named Barrett. (Barrett's name was not further mentioned. It was understood he was a dye man.)

$11,200 FROM BARRETT.

Q.—I show you a deposit slip of the Winchester Trust Company for $500 March 4, 1920. What did you receive that for? A.—That was another instalment on my fee from Mr. Barrett, which totalled $11,200.

Q.—I call your attention to three other deposit slips in March, 1920, $75 in the Winchester Trust on March 17; $250 on March 19; and $100 March 26. Can you tell me where you got that money? A.—I have not the slightest recollection. It is posible I cashed a check and deposited the money.

Q.—Why did you cash checks to deposit the money? A.—I do that quite frequently. Whenever I wish money I draw it and sometimes return it if I do not have to use it. I have $100 now that I drew yesterday, expecting to take Mrs. Tufts on a trip. We will not be able to go. I will probably return part of it.

Q.—I call your attention to a deposit slip on the Winchester Trust Company of $40 in bills and $40 in silver. A.—Where does this say anything about $40 in silver.

Allen and Tufts disagreed as to whether the slip made any reference to silver.

Q.—I show you a deposit slip June 29, 1920, showing a deposit of $800 in bills. Do you recall from whom you got that money? A.—I think it was a part of the repayment of the loan of $2,100 to my brother-in-law.

LOAN TO BROTHER-IN-LAW.

Q.—He repaid you in bills? A.—Yes, he was on his way to the State. He cashed a large check for his own use and gave me some.

Q.—What is your brother-in-law's name? A.—Charles Hamelen.

Q.—Was that the final payment on the amount loaned? A.—Yes.

Q.—On July 1, 1920, you deposited $1,000 in bills? A.—That was money drawn from my savings bank.

Q.—November 2 you deposited $300 in bills? A.—I do not remember where that came from.

Q.—On December 16, 1920, you deposited $236.41 in bills. A.—I do not recall that.

Q.—By referring to your books can you tell me? A.—Not without going through every case I took up at that time.

Q.—On December 20, 1920, you deposited $2,012? A.—That was part of the money received from Barrett.

Q.—On January 3, 1921, you deposited $1,043 in bills. A.—One thousand dollars was part of the money from Barrett.

Q.—Did this Mr. Barrett pay you in bills? A.—I have already told you he paid me $11,000 at one time and that is part of it.

CONTINGENCY FEE.

Q.—Can you tell me the date that he paid you this money? A.—December 19 or 20 of last year.

Q.—Where did he pay you? A.—At his office on Causeway street, Boston.

Q.—Did you request payment in bills? A.—No.

Q.—Why didn't you deposit the entire amount at once? A.—For no particular reason. It was sort of contingency fee.

Q.—What was the contingency? A.—Unless my client permits or the court directs I do not care to answer that question.

Q.—I am not requesting any facts about the case. I asked what was the contingency? A.—There was no particular reason. I told Barrett that I would keep the money until I had to use it.

Q.—Could it not have been deposited and drawing interest? A.—Yes.

Q.—Where was it kept? A.—In a safety deposit vault in the Waltham National Bank.

Q.—Have all the deposits been made in that? A.—Yes. I deposited the bulk of it at once.

Q.—How much did you deposit then? A.—$8,000.

SUMS FROM BARRETT.

Q.—Was the last deposit of that amount made during January? A.—No, in May, I think.

Q.—On January 14 you deposited $1,000 in bills in the Winchester Trust? A.—That was from Barrett.

Q.—On January 25 you deposited $83 in bills? A.—I do not remember that.

Q.—On February 2 you deposited $100 in bills? A.—I do not recall that.

Q.—On February 7 you deposited $620 in bills? A.—I presume that was from Barrett.

Q.—On February 11 you deposited $90 in bills and on February 14 you deposited $52 in bills? A.—I do not recall that.

Q.—On February 16 you deposited $500? A.—That was part of the amount from Barrett.

Q.—On February 21 you deposited $400 in bills? A.—That was from Barrett.

Q.—On March 16 you deposited $95 in bills? A.—I don't recall that.

Q.—On March 18 you deposited $400? A.—That was from Barrett too.

Q.—On April 6 you deposited $70? A.—I don't recall it.

CHECKED BY COURT.

Q.—On May 7 you deposited $850? A.—That was from Barrett.

Q.—On May 17 you deposited $250? A.—I don't recall.

Q.—Have you any way of ascertaining? A.—No. I have said frequently that I have withdrawn money in order to have a fixed amount for emergencies on automobile trips, and later re-deposited it.

Q.—On May 21 you deposited $260 in bills? A.—That was three months ago, but I can't say how I received it.

Q.—On May 26 you deposited $850 in bills? A.—That may have been from Barrett, but I don't think so. I think I deposited Barrett's last amount prior to this time.

Q.—On July 2 you deposited $130 in bills? A.—I couldn't say what that was.

Chief Justice Rugg—These slips, Mr. Attorney-General, are dated after the filing of information in this case.

Attorney-General Allen—Very well, your honor.

Q.—I then call your attention to bills $446.66 deposited March 22. Was that your monthly salary on your rate of $5,000 a year? A.—Yes, that is probably it, and that probably explains some of those other amounts, which are called deposits in bills but which were actually deposits in checks.

OTHER DEPOSITS.

Q.—In the Exchange Trust Company you deposited $300 on January 9, 1919? A.—I do not remember. It may have been a check.

Q.—On January 28, 1919, you deposited $50 in bills? A.—I don't recall.

Q.—On July 7 you deposited $160 in bills and on July 19 you deposited $50 in bills? A.—I don't recall them.

Q.—On July 24 you deposited $450? A.—I think that was a sum which I drew when I was about to go away with my family. We did not go and I re-deposited the money.

Allen then questioned Tufts in regard to separate deposits in bills of the amount of $76, $225, $135, $135 again, and $300, covering a period from July 23 to November 18. Tufts replied that he had no recollection of where they came from except that occasionally in scire facias proceedings cash was given in settlement, which amounts Tufts deposited and later gave an accounting in checks.

Allen also questioned Tufts concerning the deposits in cash of $200, $100, $200 and $204 in the Winchester Trust Company, covering the period from November, 1919, to March 3, 1920.

Q.—On June 7, 1920, you deposited $650 in the Winchester Trust Company? A.—I have no recollection. I would be glad to look it up.

Q.—A few days later you deposited $1,900 in cash? A.—That was received from a client, in connection with a case in which Assistant Attorney-General Flaherty was suing a woman.

PAID BY MAN.

Q.—What was her name? A.—Unless the court directs I would prefer not to give it.

Q.—Was it the woman who paid you? A.—No, it was a man.

Q.—Did the man pay you in bills? A.—Yes.

Q.—Where did he pay you? A.—At my office in Boston.

Q.—Why did he pay you in bills? A.—Because he didn't want his wife to know.

CARUSO TOOK ALL ESTATE TO ITALY

Tenor Left Nothing of Value in United States, Says His Secretary

New York, Aug. 5.—Enrico Caruso, greatest of tenors, possibly inspired by a premonition of impending death, took all his property with him when he sailed for Italy last May, according to his secretary, Bruno Zirato.

Zirato declared that Caruso left nothing of any value in this country, his villa at East Huntington, L. I., being leased, while his city residence was at the Hotel Vanderbilt.

Asked about the report that Caruso had made a second will, in which the usufruct of the singer's estate was left to his widow, the secretary said he would not be surprised if that had been done.

Zirato emphasized, however, that no one in this country knows anything authentic of the amount of Caruso's estate nor of the manner in which he disposed of it.

THE FIRST WILL.

The first will, executed in New York, was said to have divided the estate equally among the testator's nearest of kin, including Mrs. Dorothy Benjamin Caruso, his wife; Gloria, the baby daughter; Rodolpho and Enrico, Jr., sons by a former marriage; his stepmother in Italy, and Giovanni Caruso, his brother.

The former secretary took issue with Constantino J. Sperco, a friend of Caruso, who said the will was executed shortly before the birth of little Gloria. Zirato said the will was drawn a month or two after the birth of the child, and must have been executed in January or February of 1920.

"Practically all of Caruso's stocks and bonds," said Zirato, "with the sole exception of a comparatively small block of Liberty Loan securities, which he still retains in a safety deposit vault, were sold out completely something like two years ago by a Fifth Avenue Bank under his orders.

HEAVY TAXES THE REASON.

"His reason for this action, I presume, was the heavy government taxes now imposed upon such holdings, though during war time and thereafter there were few men, if any, who paid large income tax imposts more cheerfully than he.

"Until shortly before his departure for Italy many of Caruso's most cherished art objects remained here in his suite in the Vanderbilt, but it was by his order that these were all packed into a score of trunks and large packing cases and were removed.

"Even the magnificent collection of gifts—silver, china, pictures and all kinds of rich knickknacks—which were lavished upon him on the occasion of the twenty-fifth anniversary of his connection with the Metropolitan Opera Company, were carefully packed away, and these accompanied him and Mrs. Caruso to Sorrento. There were eighteen trunks and large cases required to contain these personal effects, in addition to the twenty trunks which went aboard the President Wilson as cabin baggage. A few cases which remain here are now in a safe deposit vault.

EXECUTION OF WILL.

"Who knows, Bruno?" said he. "I may never get back to New York."

"I note in the newspapers references to Caruso's will made by Constantino J. Sperco, a personal friend of the testator. Mr. Sperco is quoted as saying this instrument was executed not long before the birth of little Gloria, and that the estate under its terms was divided into six parts.

"As a matter of fact the will referred to was executed a month or two after the birth of Little Gloria. Its execution must have been either in January or February, 1920. It was a holographic will. That is, it was written in Caruso's own handwriting. Nobody else ever had it in his custody. I recall very well also that it was an exceedingly brief document. The instrument was witnessed by myself, Sperco and Salvatore Fucito, Caruso's accompanist and friend. Each of us simply signed an attest of the signature, and I have no idea that any one of the witnesses was familiar with the provisions of the instrument. Our signatures were appended in the suite. Caruso was at that time in good health, but he evidently had in mind the responsibility newly imposed upon him by the birth of his little daughter.

SECOND WILL POSSIBLE.

"I am quite confident also that Caruso took that document with him personally when he sailed for Italy, although I note published statements to the effect that it was forwarded from here by Sperco to Caruso's legal adviser in Italy.

"It is quite possible that Caruso made a second will at Sorrento, although I have no knowledge concerning it and in my good friend's letters to me he had made no mention of such a document. But I should not be surprised if he had done so. After he had convalesced from his illness here we were talking one day of the brief will he had executed in 1920. I suggested to him that I thought he should make a more formal instrument, as he doubtless would wish to provide for certain public bequests.

"I reminded him that many of the art objects in his collection had come from Rome, others originally were a part of the Morgan collection, and so on. I assumed that in the event of his death it would be his wish to return some of these beautiful things by bequest to the collections from which they had come. When I advised that his will ought to specify these provisions, if such were his desire, he smiled and made some jocular remark sinifying that he would give it thought later."

MEDFORD MAN HIT BY AUTO IN QUINCY

Hurley C. Moulton, Marshall street, Medford, was seriously injured when a passing automobile struck him as he was bending by his own car on Adams street, Quincy, near the East Milton line, changing a tire. At Quincy City Hospital it was found he had a compound fracture of the hip. The driver of the car which struck him failed to stop after the accident.

LAWRENCE GIRL VICTIM IN NEW YORK HOLDUP

Young Columbia student, who, with her escort, also a student, was held up by four bandits on Riverside Drive, New York. The couple were returning from a college dance at the time of the hold-up.

MISS MILDRED ANNAN

Lawrence, Aug. 5.—All Lawrence today discussed with much pride and appreciation the quick-wittedness of Miss Mildred Annan, daughter of Mrs. Ida Annan, No. 120 Haverhill street, this city, who saved her escort's watch when they were held up in New York.

Miss Annan, a graduate of the local high school and Essex County Agricultural School, is taking a special course in automobile engineering at Columbia University, New York.

With Clifford L. Brownell of Hartford, Ct., also a student, the young woman was returning from a dance at one of the university halls, when they were held up by four youthful bandits at 120th street and Riverside Drive.

Brownell elevated his hands, on command of the bandits, but while they were demanding his money Miss Annan picked his pocket of his watch and dropped it down the front of her waist. A policeman appeared and captured one of the holdup "men," who had taken a fountain pen, a pencil and sixty-five cents. Brownell's wallet, in an inside pocket, was overlooked.

Miss Annan is well-known locally, and has won several prizes as an essayist. She was born in Landover, Md., twenty-five years ago. She was graduated from the Lawrence High School in 1913 and the Agricultural School in 1917.

PROBE DEATH OF BABY GIVEN TO STATE'S CARE

Father Also Demands Reasons for Bruises on 3-Year-Old Brother

Derk Verbeek, No. 17 Fairmount road, East Braintree, today took steps to obtain an autopsy upon the body of his seventeen-months'-old baby, Elmer, who died in the New England Women's Hospital, Roxbury, July 13.

He is also demanding a full investigation of stripes and bruises which, he says, covered the body of Elmer's little three-year-old brother, when the boy was restored to his care after both children had been placed with the Division of Child Guardianship, Department of Public Welfare, last Spring.

The story Verbeek tells began last Winter when he was out of work and his wife was taken ill. They had four children and Verbeek decided that as he was unable to care properly for all he would turn two of them over to the State.

He says he understands that the State placed the children to board with a woman in Saugus. When they left home they were fat and healthy, he adds.

In July he was notified that Elmer was ill at the hospital. Upon going there, he asserts, he was refused admission. Two days later he received a special delivery letter from the State House saying the child was dead.

After the baby was buried, he became anxious about the other boy and asked for his restoration. On the youngster's arrival it was found, according to the father and others, that his body was covered with stripes and bruises.

Now Verbeek wants to find out whether the body of Elmer was covered with the same sort of marks. He also wants to find the person he alleges was responsible for the treatment that produced the marks on the three-year-old child.

TOLSTOY'S FRIEND BLAMES LOVE AND WOMAN FOR COURT CHARGE

LAYS FALL TO FICKLE ROMANCE

"Love has placed me where I am today. Love and devotion showered on a woman who did not appreciate it.

"Love for this woman has taken me from all my friends of other years and has left me broken and practically penniless and has placed me within the clutches of the law.

"I am innocent and I know the courts will prove me so. And when I am free once more I shall return to my old life and again strive to reach the goal that was my early ambition to become a power in the brotherhood of idealists."

Thus does Carl Michelsen, idealist, soldier of fortune, writer, lecturer, globe trotter and former friend of Count Tolstoy, explain how he was taken into the Roxbury Court on the charge of attempted breaking and entering and larceny.

The life story of Michelsen reads like a novel. Riches, poverty, joy, sorrow, adventure, danger and disgrace—all have fallen to his lot. But he has his head up and iss looking bravely ahead hoping to see the day when he shall rise again from what he terms "the shameful position in which the love of a woman has placed him."

The woman in the case, Michelsen says, is Augusta Pearson, 30 years old. She lives at 8 Harlow street, Roxbury.

WOMAN IN COURT.

"She sat in court waiting to testify against me," said Michelsen. "Waiting to testify against the best friend she ever had. Waiting for the opportunity to put me behind the bars on a charge trumped up by her and a man so vile that I hate to think of him."

Michelsen was born forty-four years ago in Copenhagen, Denmark. His father was a member of one of Copenhagen's most influential families. He was commissioner of education in that city. Wealth, position, influence—all were included in the birthright of Michelsen.

The sea fascinated him. Possessed of the northern brooding spirit, it had a mysterious influence over the lad, and at the age of thirteen years he ran away from home and went to his beloved sea. Eventually he landed in America.

In a few months he returned to Copenhagen, and his father rejoiced. For it was his father's ambition to have his boy take up his own work in the idealistic field and some day become head of the De l'Union Idealistic Universelle, of which he was vice-president.

STUDIED UNDER TOLSTOY.

His education was all aimed in that direction and the lad was sent to the farm of the great Count Tolstoy in Russia. There he spent many hours walking behind the plow of the famous Count, drinking in his ideas on the universal brotherhood of man.

"The influence of the Count was a wonderful thing," said Michelsen. He showed me what faith in mankind really means. He showed me how a universal brotherhood, in which all men could have faith in each other, could cure the ills of the world. And I wanted to follow in his steps through life."

The wanderlust conquered over the great Tolstoy and once again the boy left on the quest of adventure. Africa, Mexico, China, the Philippines—all saw the young man.

In Africa he fought in the Boer war. In the Spanish War he fought under the Stars and Stripes. In the Philippines he served with the American forces and in China he distinguished himself by bravery with the American troops during the Boxer uprising.

Meanwhile he had not forgotten the teachings of his father and Count Tolstoy. He had kept up his work in the idealistic belief.

He married. He was chosen as the trustee of a large trust fund for the founding of a big idealistic colony in Alabama, but the project fell through. Followed a period of waiting and lecturing on idealism and adventure.

THEN CAME ROMANCE.

His wife died leaving him with a little boy. He finally came to Boston and then he says began the great romance—with the bitter ending.

"It was five years ago that I met this woman," said Michelson. "She appealed to me. We were happy. I loved her. Oh, how I loved her. I worked and slaved at menial occupations in order to provide comforts with which to make her happy. I forgot my idealism in my devotion for her. I put aside my friends of other years. The younger Tolstoy, son of the great author, was put out of my life. I lived for her, I loved her.

"Came another man. The old story of the eternal triangle soon made itself apparent."

"I could not stand it to see another taking my place while I paid the bills. Troubles followed and last April I brought my boy here, away from her. But I still loved her—passionately.'

"She had me arrested for assault and battery," said Michelsen, "but the court cleared me.

"Now I am charged with attempted breaking and entering and larceny, and she is in the plot to ruin me," said Michelsen.

"It is a spirit of revenge on her part and on the part of the man who came into our lives. I am innocent, and, when my case comes up in court, it shall be proven. They planned this thing and trumped up this case to get me out of the way.

"I am down to my last $10 bill and have my boy to provide for as well as my other expenses. But I do not despair. Surely there is a way for me to get back on my feet; to get back to the position where I belong; to get back where I may fulfill my father's great wish—that I might yet rise to a position of prominence and power in the great idealistic brotherhood. And when I do get on my feet love for a woman will not pull me back again. Romance and love have broken me.'

"Woman in the Case" Who Is Accused by Soldier of Fortune

AUGUSTA PEARSON.

For love of her, Danish idealist says he sacrificed ambition and wealth, only to find romance shattered.

BIG STILL, TINY DOOR A PUZZLE TO RAIDERS

Ike Weiner of Savin street, Roxbury, charged in Roxbury Court with unlawfully exposing and keeping for sale intoxicating liquor, pleaded not guilty before Judge Hayden and was held in $800 for August 10.

When Sergeant Dickinson of the Dudley street station called to search the man's place he discovered a blind attic with only one small window, in which was a ten-gallon still, fifty gallons of mash in six barrels and about three and one-half gallons of distilled product.

Puzzled as to how the outfit could have been taken to the room, or how it could be removed, Sergeant Dickinson solved the problem by opening the window and dumping the contents of the barrels to the roof.

GIRLS ACCEPT RESTRICTION ON MARRIAGE

Agree Not to Wed Outside Jewish Faith, as Directed in Mother's Will

"Mother knew best."

So declared Elizabeth and Marion Steuer of No. 67 Chester street, Allston, in commenting upon the provision in the will of their mother, Mrs. Jennie D. Steuer, that if any of her children marry outside the Jewish faith they shall be automatically disinherited.

Though the will, which has just been filed in Suffolk County courthouse, may seem strange to some persons, to these girls, who are the only single daughters of the late real estate operator, there is nothing extraordinary about it.

ESTATE EQUALLY DIVIDED.

The estate is to be divided equally between Bernard Steuer and the four daughters, Mrs. Henrietta S. Finer of No. 15 Fuller street, Brookline; Mrs. Celia S. Wasserman, No. 1117 Commonwealth avenue, Allston, and the Misses Elizabeth and Marion Steuer, both of No. 67 Chester street, Allston.

Mr. Steuer is named as executor of the trust, and though he may use his share of the property, the children are not to receive theirs until his death. In the meantime, he is charged with educating and taking care of them.

The husband is given power to restore to their rights in the estate any of the girls who might marry outside the Jewish faith, if he so determines.

WILL NOT UNUSUAL.

"There is nothing unusual about this will," was the joint comment of the two unmarried daughters, who are in their early twenties.

"We have known the wishes of our mother since childhood," declared Marion, with her sister nodding agreement. "Mother thought that we would not be happy if we married someone not of the Jewish faith," she continued, "and we agree with her.

"We move practically solely in Jewish circles, and while we do not and would not discriminate against other races or creeds, we feel that those of the Jewish faith should not marry outsiders, simply to promote harmony."

WILL OBEY MOTHER.

Both girls were firm in their determination not to disobey their mother's wishes, which they agreed conform to theirs, and said they had no intention of contesting the will, which was made in 1908.

"This is the sentiment of our whole family," said Elizabeth. "It is father's wish as well as ours that we should not marry anyone not of the Jewish faith.

"Mother has impressed upon us many times that if we married outside the faith, we might not have a happy wedded life," she said, "and to make it still more impressive in our minds she has included this wish in her will."

Mr. Steuer is dangerously ill. His wife's death on July 19 came while he was sick and the shock has interfered with his recovery. The daughters say that he also has a provision in his will that any child marrying outside the Jewish faith shall not benefit from his estate.

COMMUNISM TEMPORARY PHASE, SAYS FRANCE

Berlin, Aug. 5.—"Communism in Russia is only a temporary phase in the development of the country," United States Senator Joseph France of Maryland was quoted as saying today in an interview printed in the Vossische Zeitung.

The interview continued: "It is a passing stage form an old outworn system. The laws which have governed the world for centuries also apply to Russia. Communism as a permanent industrial system is utopian, and Lenine recognizes that fact."

FUNERAL SUNDAY FOR SERGT. FREEDMAN

Funeral services for Sergeant Maurice H. Freedman, Company D, 102d Machine Gun Company, Yankee Division, who was killed in action on July 22, 1918, will be held from the Commonwealth Armory Sunday at 1 o'clock. American Legion Post 44 of Roxbury and an escort of cavalry from the Commonwealth Armory will accompany the body to Mt. Vail Cemetery, Woburn. Sergeant Freedman was formerly a member of Troop D, Roxbury Horse Guards.

HUNT INCENDIARY IN ROXBURY FIRE

Police of Roxbury are investigating a fire in the second floor apartment of a three-story frame dwelling at No. 2 Nawn street, Roxbury, occupied by Mrs. Rose Foy.

The blaze, which was extinguished before it had done more than $5 damage, is believed to have been of incendiary origin, traces of kerosene having been found in a hallway near where the fire started.

FILE WILL SIGNED WITH FINGER PRINTS

Worcester, Aug. 5.—Ahmed Mamed used the thumb and finger prints of both hands as the signature to his will which was filed today in Probate court.

The will was made Feb. 23 and Hassan Kowished of Northbridge is named executor.

Rum in House Cost $100

Harris Stearns of Blue Hill avenue, Roxbury, charged with unlawfully keeping and exposing and selling intoxicating liquor, was found guilty and fined $50 on each charge. Sentence was suspended in order to permit him tome to pay.

'GRANDDAD' IN ANGER AT LOVE SUIT

Middleton Farmer, 63, Denies Alienating Affections of Mrs. Agnes C. Hawthorne, 28

"It's a lie," shouted sixty-three-year-old Fred D. Dearborn, wealthy Middleton farmer and a "grandaddy," who is defendant in a suit for $20,000 damages brought by Bertram Vivian Hawthorne of Walnut street, Lynnfield, for alleged alienation of the affections of his pretty twenty-eight-year-old wife, Mrs. Agnes C. Hawthorne.

"It's a —— lie," also cried Mrs. Hawthorne, when interviewed at her pretty home, "The Hawthorne," overlooking picturesque Walden Pond in Lynnfield. Her blue eyes flashed fire as she denied her husband's charge.

The suit, filed yesterday at Salem, is creating wide interest in Lynn, where the principals are well known and where resides Representative Charles W. Hawthorne, father of "Bertie."

Dearborn, who recently purchased a large dairy farm in Middleton, which is managed by his married son, Howard, for many years conducted a large farm on Salem street, Lynnfield, near the Wakefield-Saugus boundary line. Dearborn, after entering a blanket denial of anything improper in his friendship for Mrs. Hawthorne, declined to go into further details.

Dearborn has engaged Attorney Richard Sisk of Lynn to defend him when the suit is heard next month at Salem. Judge Ralph W. Reeve, of the Lynn District Court, is handling the Hawthorne interests.

STILL LIVE TOGETHER.

The twenty-seven-year-old husband, who alleges the affections of his pretty wife have been "stolen" from him, is a claim investigator for the Boston & Maine Railroad.

The Hawthorne's were married five years ago in Roxbury, following a six months' courtship. It is said his parents objected to the marriage.

In discussing the case with a Boston American reporter, Mrs. Hawthorne declared she will continue to live with her husband until the suit is heard in court. "Do you still love your husband?" queried the reporter.

"I should say not!" she declared. "Do you think I'd love a man who doesn't hardly want his wife to breathe without asking his permission. Not me!"

Mrs. Hawthorne, in relating incidents of her shattered romance, said:

"You will pardon me for the language, but its simply h——l to live with an insanely jealous man. My advice to all girls is never marry a jealous man. If he is continually giving vent to such tactics before marriage, rest assured he will after the wedding march is played.

BANNED ENGINE HOUSE DANCE.

"Of course I know Mr. Dearborn. He formerly lived but a short distance from here. But as for Mr. Dearborn alienating my affections, it's simply silly. Why, when my husband came home and told me the suit had been filed, I simply smashed the dish which I was wiping to the floor. Such a ridiculous charge!

"Why, I've only been out of the house four or five times during an evening since my marriage, five years ago. My husband has never wanted me to go anywhere alone, even to an entertainment at Chemical 3 engine house, but it's all right to leave me alone in the house while he attends his lodge meetings.

"My husband's folks put him up to this, anyway. Hisfolks have been trying to separate us for a long time. 'Daddy' Hawthorne may be a political "poo bah" in Lynn, and at the State House, but he means nothing in my young life.

"It's repeated instances of this kind that makes you sick of married life," concluded the petite wife.

MRS. JOHN W. DAVIDGE

DAUGHTER HELPS WEEKS AS HOST TO PRESIDENT

Steps Into Mother's Shoes and Entertains Presidential Party

Mrs. John W. Davidge is the hostess who is entertaining President and Mrs. Warren G. Harding and party in New Hampshire.

Never heard of her? She is the married daughter of Secretary of War Weeks, and she is taking the place of her mother, Mrs. Weeks, who is at present in Europe.

When Mr. and Mrs. Harding accepted the Secretary's invitation to spend several days at the Cabinet member's Summer lodge up in New Hampshire, Mr. Weeks is said to have telegraphed to his daughter:

"Come to Lancaster to take the place of your mother."

According to the story that is going the rounds the prospect of playing hostess to the first gentleman and the first lady of the land did not worry Mrs. Davidge. She is reported to have wired back:

"Sure, dad. Will do my best, but nobody can take mother's place."

Now Mrs. Davidge has on her housewifely hands the care of the President of the United States and Mrs. Harding, Senator and Mrs. Frelinghuysen, Senator and Mrs. New of Indiana and the other members of the presidential party.

And they all declare she makes an ideal hostess.

CHARLESTOWN SOLONS MAKE CAR PROTEST

Senator Thomas H. Green and Representative Francis, Mellen and Winnett, of Charlestown, called upon General Manager Dana of the Boston Elevated and discussed at length the car situation in the Charlestown district, calling attention to what seemed in the opinion of the public an undesirable proposed change in service.

Any schedule is always subject to modification after its trial. Dana assured the legislators, adding, that should conditions develop which needed modifications he would be glad to give immediate attention after the plan had been in operation.

NAVAL OFFICERS MAY APPEAR IN SEARLES SUIT

Accuser of Millionaire Says Men in Service Will Aid Her in Case

Naval officers of high rank have offered to testify at the trial of the $2,000,000 breach of promise suit brought by Miss Mary Johnson, the Rockport artist, against Victor Searles of Boston, according to statements made in her behalf today.

"The assertion that I ever was engaged to a navy man at Portsmouth during my friendship with Mr. Searles is bosh," declared Miss Johnson today. "I have known a many naval men, and have many firm friends in the service, a number of whom have told me they would be only too glad to take the stand in my behalf when the case comes to trial. So have other friends acquainted with the circumstances."

In spite of the fact that she is suing him for a huge sum of money as heart balm, Miss Johnson said that she "still believes in Victor. I have always believed in him as I have never believed in any other man.

"As to the letters I wrote him and which he has turned over to his attorney, Sherman L. Whipple, they were not of a threatening nature, but written in a strain intended to awaken his manhood."

It developed today that Miss Johnson will be cited tomorrow as a poor debtor in the East Essex District Court. The Boston Antique Shop, at No. 10 Milk street, through Alfred Stainforth of Winthrop, has obtained a judgment of $107.50, balance due on a two-year-old bill.

Miss Johnson's attorney, John H. O'Neil of Danvers, today declared that save for a small income derived from her art work, his client is penniless, and with an old and infirm mother to care for. He added that he is acting for her in the Searles suit "through kindness alone."

HARDING CHEERS WOUNDED MEN BY VISIT

President Cancels Engagement to Call on Disabled Veterans in New Hampshire

Lancaster, N. H., Aug. 5.—President Harding planned to sacrifice a few hours from his vacation at Mount Prospect in order that he might motor thirty miles away to Gorham, N. H., to pay his respects to a little group of war veterans who are confined in a tubercular hospital there.

The sick soldiers expressed a desire to have a word of cheer from their commander-in-chief and the word reached the President he immediately cancelled a social engagement and arranged to motor to Gorham to visit the soldiers in their hospital.

The vacation of the President is nearing an end and his thoughts are again turning to his work and it is evident that the forthcoming disarmament conference is uppermost in his mind.

CONFIDENT OF SUCCESS.

His very apparent enthusiasm over the prospects of success for the conference is radiated wherever and whenever he speaks and he is losing no opportunity to appear to the people of the nation to give them most earnest support to the project.

It was indicated that it is very likely that the President upon his return to Washington may find the preliminary disarmament negotiations in such a shape that he will feel warranted in issuing the formal invitations and setting the date.

With his attentions wandering a bit from his vacation, it is understood that next to disarmament he is thinking of tax revision, and upon resuming the White House reins next Tuesday, he will use his efforts to speed up the work of Congress, looking towards a revision of taxes in order that business may go forward with plans for readjustment.

The President's visit here is the subject of much conversation, but right now contending political factors are wondering whether the President and his late political opponent, James M. Cox, are going to meet. Cox is stopping at Bethlehem, only 18 miles away. Thus far no calls have been exchanged. It is now probable that the President will leave here tomorrow.

CAMBRIDGE BOY CADDY.

Don Howard, seventeen years old, won a coveted honor when he was selected to caddy for President Harding at the Waumbek Golf Club at Jefferson. The personal caddy for the President is expected to visit the different golf clubs in New Hampshire on whose courses President Harding will play.

Young Howard is a son of Rev. Lawrence R. Howard, pastor of the North Congregational Church, North Cambridge, and lives at No. 112 Prospect street, Cambridge. He is a student at the Cambridge High and Latin School.

Don has been at the Boy Scouts' camp at Jefferson since July 1, where he is patrol leader of a number of Boy Scouts from Somerville.

Don hopes to become a scout master as his father, before coming to Cambridge, was a scout master in Wisconsin. During the World War Rev. Mr. Howard served as a Y. M. C. A. worker in France.

There is a rumor around the Waumbek Golf Club that the Caddy's Union may protest against Howard acting as caddy to the President as he is not a regular caddy, but as yet no action has been taken by the union.

KILLED BY THIRD RAIL IN FLEEING TAXI DRIVER

Brooklyn Girl Ran Down Tunnel to Evade Payment of Fare

New York, Aug. 5.—After a mad dash down a subway tunnel in flight from a taxi-driver whose fare she could not pay, Katherine Hogan of Brooklyn was rescued from under the wheels of an express, only to fall against the third rail and be instantly killed at the Pacific street station of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit here today.

With two girl companions, Maud Stevenson and May Kenny, Miss Hogan had gone on a ride this morning, ending at the subway station, where, it is alleged, the three fled down the steps, hoping to escape the chauffeur, whose meter read [illegible].

The man, however, followed the girls to the lower platform, where Miss Stevenson and Miss Hogan jumped on the tracks and dashed down the tunnel. Employes of the B. R. T. followed them with lanterns and found them in a perilous but safe perch between third rails and tracks as an express roared by so close that it carried off Miss Stevenson's hat. No sooner had the train passed than Miss Hogan eluded her rescuers and ran back up the track to the station, where, as she was attempting to climb to the platform, she stumbled and fell. Her face struck the third rail and she was instantly killed. Miss Stevenson became hysterical and attempted to raise the body of her friend and was badly shocked.

The dead girl and the two who had been with her on the ride were taken to the police station in the same cab from which they had fled. A technical charge of homicide was lodged against the driver.

INJURIES PROVE FATAL TO F. E. WOODWARD

Frank E. Woodward, sixty-nine years old, of No. 48 Abbott road, Wellesley, formerly prominent in politics and civic life of Malden, died today at the Deaconess Hospital, Brookline. A week ago Monday he was struck by a trolley in Brookline and was taken first to the City Hospital, and from there to the Deaconess Hospital.

Mr. Woodward was born in Damariscotta, Me., and was graduated from the Chelsea High School. He was, during the early years of his life, a prominent Republican of Chelsea. Ten years ago Mr. Woodward removed to Wellesley. He leaves a widow and eight children, four sons and four daughters, and five grandchildren.

NEW "HUGGER" SCARES BRAINTREE WOMEN

Whether the Braintree "hugger" has reappeared or whether a new miscreant who embraces women is on the scene, is the problem the police of that town are seeking to solve today. A renewed hunt for the mysterious man has been started, following his attempt to hug Miss Marion Sickles, twenty-two years old, of Peach street, Braintree Highlands.

The man sprang at her as she was returning from work, not far from the Braintree police station. Her screams caused him to flee. Miss Sickles then ran to the police station and told her story of the attack.

POSTMISTRESS ADMITS MURDER, POLICE SAY

Killed Man Who Refused to Shoulder Her Theft Guilt, Is Belief

By International News Service.

Miami, Fla., Aug. 5.—With two confessions from Miss Lena Clarke, former postmistress at West Palm Beach, Fla., in their hands, Federal and State authorities, who are striving to clear up the mystery of the murder of W. M. Miltmore at Orlando, Fla., believed today their path has been made easier.

Chief of Police Vestal at Orlando declared today Miss Clarke admitted she had shot Miltmore. Previously, according to postoffice inspectors, she had admitted the theft of $32,000 from a mail pouch while it was en route to Atlanta.

Defalcations, piled up bit by bit until they reached a total of nearly $25,000, bred the fear in her heart, authorities alleged, that drove Miss Clarke first to steal $32,000 in currency and then to add murder to her troubles.

The huge sum in cash, it was declared was taken by Miss Clarke to cover her shortages in the Post Office at West Palm Beach. Then, fearful of shouldering the guilt, she lured Miltmore to her room in an Orlando hotel, according to the police, and there shot him when he declined to sign a statement admitting the theft. Again, terror stricken, according to the police theory, she conceived the plan of telling officers at Orlando that Miltmore was the real thief, that he had been lured to her room and drugged and that it would be easy for them to arrest him.

Police found him dead in the room when they arrived two hours after the time Miss Clarke said he reached her room. He had been shot through the heart. She professed ignorance at this turn of affairs.

Miss Clarke, according to her alleged confession to postal authorities, took $1,000 with her when she went to Orlando. They say they found $750 of this sum in cash in the bath room.

WIDOW'S HOME PILLAGED IN REPRISAL

Black and Tans Wreak Vengeance Because She Failed to Report Ambush 2 Miles Away

TORTURED IRELAND

By JAMES B. CONNOLLY

Famous New England Author and Journalist.

Mrs. Dunlea, a widow, was one of the first named for punishment, and so it was that on this June morning I was on my early way in the tub trap to Mrs. Dunlea's. Mrs. Dunlea had two daughters who stayed home with her, and two sons who were priests in the Dublin diocese.

Both sons had served as chaplains in the British army during the big war. The Dunlea home had been raided several times before this, Lord only knowing for what reason. One very decent English army officer, Captain Marshall, had been even heard saying to a subordinate after his visit that he could see no reason for raiding this family whatever.

Other officers were less decent. It was just after the fight and the funeral that Captain Thomas drove up to the Dunlea home with three lorries of mixed troops, the Buffs and Black and Tans. Thomas read the proclamation to Mrs. Dunlea.

"What a wrong thing," said Mrs. Dunlea, "to be destroying the contents of my home because of a fight which took place almost two miles from here. Even if I was the kind who would turn informer will you tell me how I was to know in advance of an attack to be made on your troops by the Volunteers?"

"There were 200 Volunteers on your lawn that night?"

"There were not. And if there 2,000 will you tell me how I was to stop them?"

"You could have sent one of your daughters to tell us."

HOUSE IS PILLAGED

"Send a daughter of mine two miles to Dungarvan alone at midnight with rifle shots being fired all about and God knows what kind she would meet on the road going and coming! Are you crazy, man?"

"Enough of that. We have our orders to destroy the contents of your house."

Forty of them went raging through the house, stabbing, ripping, smashing. They did the ripping and stabbing with their bayonets, driving them through the length of the rugs, carpets, upholstery, linen and bedding; through the pictures, paintings and prints on the wall, through the silver pots and cups in the china closet, through the sacks of meal in the kitchen.

They drove them through the hay in the barn looking for concealed men; they drove them through the hens in the yard, through the hens, and into the ground beneath in their rage.

With their axes and picks they did their heavier work, chopping and smashing into small bits the different pieces of furniture. There was a hand-carved bedstead which had been in the family for a long time—a beautiful thing; and there was a hand-carved wardrobe which reached to the ceiling.

Kindling they made of them, as they did of a handsome ancient clock; and a pile of rubbish they made of all the chinaware.

There was an oil painting of Mrs. Dunlea's dead husband which Captain Thomas declared to be a portrait of Roger Casement, and that had to go too. There were vases, there were—oh, imagine what a family of education, good taste and some means would be likely to accumulate after a generation or so. All had to go to smash.

SAVED FEW THINGS.

Mrs. Dunlea's two daughters, both members of the Women Volunteers of the funeral, were present (which may account for much). They had been told that they would be allowed to remove their personal belongings, but that must have been for publication purposes only.

When they came to take their clothing away the raiders snatched them out of their hands, and in some cases put the women's things on themselves and so dressed went dancing and yelling in and out of the rooms.

One of the daughters told me how when she went to her room and began to sort the things from her dresser the soldiers stood behind and beside her. If she set a thing aside as of value they at once pounced on it for themselves. They had not the least idea of the true value of the laces, souvenirs and so on; and so after a time when she wished to save any particular thing she threw it on the floor as of no account and they let it lie there.

This daughter came down stairs with a few souvenirs saved by this strategy and what paper and silver money was in the house. This money she put into her hand bag. An officer told her to set it down on the lawn, that he would watch over it. He stood good watch over it; when he was through watching it all the money was gone from the hand bag.

They got a ladder, climbed into the cock loft and smashed down through the ceiling with their axes. "Looking for secret passages," they said. They scaled off the plastering and smashed through walls that any one could see were not over fifteen inches, looking for more secret passages.

The yachting festival which has been going on for the past week in the Solent at Cowes, on the Isle of Wight, England, comes to a brilliant end today and marks the close of the season at this favorite watering place. There has been a record number of Americans at Cowes this year, attracted by the British-American cup event for the teams of four six-meter yachts representing the two countries.

Among the Bostonians who have raced their boats are John S. Parkinson, Nathaniel Emmons, 2nd, and Nathaniel Emmons, 3rd, who are staying over in "merrie" England for the month of August. The Parkinsons, it will be remembered, sailed early last month, and have taken a house on the Solent for the season.

To make the affair unquestionably smart, King George and Queen Mary, the Duke of Connaught, Princess Mary and the Duke of York have been gracing the sailing carnival with their royal presences. The party arrived on board the royal yacht Victoria and Albert, with the equally royal yacht Alexandra near by, and H. M. S. Resolute serving as guardship. The King sails his racing cutter, the Britannia, daily during the racing.

Vice-Admiral S. Niblack, commander of the American naval forces in European waters, is on the scene on board his flagship, the Utah. The American dreadnought and the hundreds of smaller craft gathered here for the event are gayly decorated in honor of the distinguished visitors. Needless to say, there has been lavish entertaining on board the various luxurious craft in the harbor as well as in the residences along the shore. The carnival concludes this evening with a regatta and fireworks.

Captain D. E. Dismukes and the other officers of the Newport Naval Training Station are giving a dance at the Hostess House at the station this evening, and an invitation has been extended to the officers of the Casino and to the players participating in the invitation tennis tournament to attend. Speaking of the much feted players who are daily displaying their skill on the Casino courts, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Astor are also giving a dance tonight at Beechwood in honor of the players. Two hundred guests have been invited to the affair, which promises to be one of the social features of the week.

A number of well known society matrons were members of the committee in charge of the "Tide Over League" bridge tournament held yesterday at the Nahant Club, including Mrs. Freeman Allen, Mrs. Thomas Motley, Jr., Mrs. Archibald Blanchard, Mrs. Louis Bacon, Mrs. A. L. Devens and Mrs. C. Winslow. At the tournament cake, candy and refreshments were sold.

For tomorrow's "Garden Day" Mrs. John Burnham and Mrs. Alanson Daniels have opened their Wenham estates for the benefit of the Massachusetts committee of the National Civic Federation.

Mrs. John Chipman Gray of Boston is at the Brownland cottages at Manchester for a few weeks, following a visit with the Misses Katherine and Louisa Loring at Pride's Crossing.

Mrs. Lloyd Coates, well-known at the North Shore, has arrived there to visit her aunt, Miss Margaret L. Corlies, of "Att-Lea House," Magnolia. Miss Corlies will give several entertainments for her niece.

Mr. and Mrs. Horatio Lamb and Miss Edith Duncan Lamb are at their cottage at Northeast Harbor, Me., for the month of August. The Misses Aimee and Rosamond Lamb and Mrs. Henry H. Sprague are travelling in England and France and are to return in October.

Mrs. Charles L. Johnson and her son, Moorhouse L. Johnson of Paris, France, have arrived at the North Shore for the remainder of the summer. They have taken the Richard Dana Skinner cottage on University lane at Manchester Cove.

WOUNDED VETERANS ON SOUTH SHORE OUTING

More than a hundred wounded veterans from the West Roxbury and Parker Hill hospitals journeyed to the Old Beacon Club at Point Allerton, by boat and auto, to attend an outing conducted by the Metropolitan Chapter of the Red Cross. Members of the Old Beacon Club and summer residents and natives of Hull assisted in making the boys happy. Luncheon was served by a score of pretty girls and dancing was enjoyed. A fleet of autos took the men for a drive along the South Shore returning late in the afternoon. Miss Helen Lewis, Miss Eleanor Wheeler and Miss Helen West were among the number who accompanied the boys on their trip.

NEED FUNDS TO CONTINUE WORK FOR BABIES

Unless $20,000 Is Obtained, Five Stations Must Close September 1

Unless the people of Boston contribute more than $20,000 for the work of the Baby Hygiene Association, five stations will have to be closed on September 1, and the 3,000 babies whose health has been cared for there will be discharged for lack of money to pay the necessary nurses.

Announcement to this effect was made by the officials of the association today.

Lack of funds, it was said, would force the association to discontinue work among the healthy babies to keep them healthy, and compel the association to confine its work to sick and ailing children.

The five stations which are to be closed unless the necessary funds can be obtained before the first of the coming month are those at South Boston, Charlestown, Codman Square, Dorchester, Blue Hill avenue, Dorchester, and Harrison avenue.

In the other seventeen stations of the association throughout the city those that have been operating with two nurses will be forced to get along with one, and registrations must be cut down so that those in greatest need of the nursing aid can be given that assistance.

The association has been operating among the babies of the poor since 1909 and has cared for thousands of babies in that time.

HOLD 2 TAXI MEN IN GIRL'S TRIP TO PROVIDENCE

Story of Ride From Boston Brings Charges of Immoral Intent

Providence, Aug. 5.—Two Boston taxi chauffeurs were arraigned in the Sixth District Court before Judge Gorham today charged with transporting, for immoral purposes, Helen Broadbent, twenty years old, of No. 165 Hennigan street, Boston. The men were held in $2,000 bail each for the Grand Jury. The girl is being held as a material witness.

According to the story she told the local police, she had some trouble at home and decided to leave there and come to Providence. She had planned to get the midnight train from the South Station, Boston, but missed it.

While waiting for the next train she got in conversation with Leon F. Duybin, twenty-nine, of No. 14 Woodlawn avenue, and John W. Connor, No. 23 Rosemont road, Dorchester, the two chauffeurs.

She says they offered to take her to Providence, when they found she had missed her train, and that she accepted their offer. They were all arrested almost as soon as they arrived in this city.

DONS COLLEGE CAP AND GOWN TO SELL PAPERS

No Work for University Grad, Maine Man Turns Newsie in Desperation

Armand T. Gaudreau of Lewiston, Me., went to work for the circulation department of the Boston American today.

Behind this apparently unimportant announcement, lies a story of disappointments and reverses suffered by an intelligent young man in his efforts to obtain remunerative employment.

Gaudreau, college graduate, bachelor of arts and sciences, and war veteran, after months of striving, was forced to don cap and gown and sell newspapers in order to obtain food and lodging.

A lieutenant in the navy during the war, a man who majored in business administration at the University of Maine and who knows six languages, Gaudreau was unable to find an opening in this city or New York.

JOINED UNEMPLOYMENT ARMY.

Eventually he joined the army of unemployed on the Common, and then began to sell newspapers. Even then he found himself at a disadvantage, for the ragged little newsboys made sales where Gaudreau was overlooked, and he at length capitalized his helplessness by donning his treasured cap and gown.

In consequence he was today engaged to sell Boston Americans exclusively, and until a position with more of a future offers, will dispense copies of this paper to hurrying bankers, brokers, clerks and stenographers on State street.

"I am not afraid of work," said Gaudreau, "and I am glad to secure employment with the Boston American as it will pay me more than I could make selling newspapers on my own initiative. The newsboys were were very decent, and as a matter of fact helped me all they could, but they outsold me fifty to one. I am not ashamed of honest work, and am willing to do anthing, but feel I at least deserve a position in which I can go ahead.

"I was graduated from the University of Maine on June 6 last, after majoring in business administration, including a thorough course in accountancy. I speak French fluently and has studied Greek, Latin, German and Spanish.

GREEN MEN NOT WANTED.

"After my graduation, I went to my home city of Lewiston, but could get nothing worth while there. Then I went to New York, and spent two weeks there, taking in the Wall street district daily. I, thought I could be useful in banking or brokerage work or in some big commercial house because of my course of study at college.

"I found, however, that the business men wouldn't listen to a green man unless they had an interest in him. A college education apparently didn't count for anything with them. What they wanted was experience.

"One business man advised me to give up the hunt for work, stating there were thousands after every job. He suggested I take some kind of manual labor temporarily.

"I tried that. I went up into Aroostook County and attempted to get work picking potatoes, but they wouldn't hire me. About the only business that offered an opening there was rum-running. The rum-runners seem to be making a great deal of money.

"Then I came to Boston and applied at all the employment agencies, teachers' agencies and every other place I could think of. I offered myself as a bus boy in resturants, and was willing to run errands, but without avail.

LET NO CORN SPOIL AN HOUR

Any Corn Can Be Stopped Now, Any Moment, by a Touch

Science has solved the corn problem. One can now stop a corn ache instantly, and shortly remove the whole corn.

The method is gentle, scientific, sure. A famous chemist invented it. A surgical dressing house of world-wide fame produces it.

It is Blue-jay—the liquid or the plaster. A touch applies it. The pain stops at once. Soon the whole corn, however ancient, loosens and comes out.

It makes harsh treatments unnecessary. It makes paring ridiculous. It makes every corn ache a folly.

Your druggist has Blue-jay. Let it end your corn—tonight.

THE chemise frock will affiliate itself quite as closely with the Autumn mode as it has with that of the late Summer, and the only radical change will be in fabric. One couturier offers this type in dark red gabardine, with a wide set-in band of gray satin embroidered in red at the front. The collar and cuffs also are of the embroidered satin. An original belt line is introduced in a narrow strap of the red gabardine, the ends of which cross in the front, fastening with steel buttons. Uncurled ostrich trims the oddly shaped black satin hat at both sides.

THE cape, either of all fur or of fabric collared in fur, will be exceedingly popular for the Autumn, and an unusually attracticely circular model of black velvet adopts the new open neck with standing collar of chinchilla. It is quite full and of approximately skirt length, but points fall below at each side front. The chemise frock of beige Roshanara crepe centres its decorative efforts in beige silk tassels placed uniformly over the skirt.

DE VALERA AND CABINET TALK OVER PEACE

Agreement to Accept Seen as President Summons Dail Eireann

By International News Service:

Dublin, Aug. 5.—A full meeting of the Sinn Fein cabinet was held today under the chairmanship of Arthur Griffith to discuss peace matters. Another session was held this afternoon, at which Eamon De Valera was present.

President De Valera announced today that he had summoned the Dail Eireann to meet on August 16. The announcement indicates that a substantial agreement exists among Sinn Fein leaders to accept the proposals of Premier Lloyd George as a basis for further negotiations.

It is understood that some of the Irish republican army commandants are holding out strongly for the complete independence of Ireland, but are yielding gradually to the view of the Dublin cabinet that it is necessary to meet the British advances in a conciliatory spirit, provided that Ireland is not deprived of any of her national rights.

As soon as the imprisoned members are released the Dail Eireann will be acquainted with the British terms in a secret session. Following that action the question will be debated by the Dail. There is no doubt that there will be a big majority vote in favor of whatever recommendations are adopted by the Dublin cabinet, who are regarded as having achieved remarkable successes in their negotiations.

The Republicans expect that all the members of Dail Eireann now in jail will be released within forty-eight hours. There are between thirty and forty of them.

It is expected that a full dress peace conference will follow in London, although it is not likely to be held earlier than one of the last days of August.

Sir James Craig returned to Belfast from London today. The Ulster cabinet has considered the invitation of the Sinn Feiners to a conference in Dublin and has issued a statement that the Orangemen are ready to meet De Valera in London. The president, however, continues to decline to meet Craig on an equal footing at Downing street, insisting that he can only talk with him on Irish soil as representing a small minority.

'SUPER-HOODS' MYSTIFY EXPERTS

Secrets of New Giant Ships of Great Britain Are Zealously Guarded

By International News Service

Washington, Aug. 5.—The "Super-Hoods," giant warships, which Great Britain has just authorized for building are today the real mystery ships of the world in the opinion of naval experts here.

No one, not in the confidence of the British admiralty has been allowed to get more than an inkling of their real character. They have been represented vaguely as some new type of destructive monster surpassing anything now known to naval science, but officers of the other navies of the world know no more today about the vessels than when the ships were proposed.

In naval circles here there is a strong inclination to lay much of this mystery to a desire to "bluff," and although speculation among naval experts about the new boats overshadows the possibilities of the pending disarmament talk, no one is seriously alarmed over them.

The American navy has ships afloat or building that approximate superhoods, from the the little that is known of the latter. What naval officials are more concerned with on this side is the interpretation they put on the present situation.

They see in the laying down of two ships a well-defined plan to have the United States carry out her part of any disarmament pact by discarding some of our newest ships, while the other powers will oblige by letting go of some of their apparently good ships while expeditiously building newer types.

TO PUBLISH AGES OF ALL BOSTON WOMEN

But, Sh! They're Not Under Oath, and Some May Have Fibbed

The ages of Boston women will become public property this month.

A printed list, containing the ages of all women past twenty years, will be published by the police listing board and will be ready for public distribution the latter part of this month.

Furthermore, copies may be obtained by anyone who applies at the police listing board, No. 29 Pemberton square, and the office of the election department in City Hall Annex.

The police are responsible for the unprecedented situation, having obtained the information last April. Trusting women, believing that the date would be kept secret, shyly revealed their ages to the inquiring police officers. Now they declare they have been deceived.

But whisper! No woman was under oath at the time, and it is possible, barely possible, mind you, that the ages were shaded to a trifling extent in certain cases.

At any rate, under the law, lists must be published showing the name, age, occupation and residence of every person in the city on the first day of April in the preceding year, twenty years or upwards, who is not a pauper in a public institution.

HOW WOMEN'S AGES WILL BE SHOWN ON VOTING LIST

This is the way Boston's women's ages will be shown on the Boston election list:

OSWALD STREET.

Street No.	Name.	Age.	Occupation.	Residence April 1, '20.
26	Weepingwillow, Annabelle G.	21	Housewife	Squantum
26	Weepingwillow, Oscar H.	42	Bookkeeper	Squantum
28	Dubegone, Mary A.	39	Clerk	Same
28	Dubegone, Abigail J.	62	Housewife	Same
28	Dubegone, Ezekiel R.	60	Hostler	Same
30	Merryfellow, Agnes	21	Housewife	Saugus
30	Merryfellow, Walter H.	26	Mechanic	East Lynn

The law, amended when woman suffrage was obtained, now reads:

"The listing board shall, within the first seven days of April in each year, by itself or by police officers, subject to the jurisdiction of the police commissioner, visit every building in said city, and, after diligent inquiry, make true lists, arranged by streets, wards and voting precincts, and containing as nearly as the board can ascertain the name, age, occupation and residence on the first day of April in the current year, and the residence on the first day of April in the preceding year, of every person, twenty years of age or upwards, who is not a pauper in a public institution, residing in said city."

But cheer up, Boston women, for all your sisters throughout the State will eventually come to the same condition and will be forced to reveal their ages.

LESCORD AWAITS FATE AT JURY'S HANDS

Defence in Vermont Store Murder Waives Right to Offer Testimony

Woodstock, Vt., Aug. 5.—The case of William Lescord, charged with the first degree murder on May 5 of George Race in a store at Gassetts, was given to the jury today after the defense had waived its right to offer testimony.

During the morning session, while attorneys for both sides were concluding their arguments, a heavy guard stood watch outside the court room to prevent any public demonstration being made against the defendant.

An overwhelming mass of testimony was offered by the State, and a near sensation was caused by the refusal of Lescord's lawyers to attempt to rebut any of it.

Says It's a Poor Engagement Ring That Doesn't Change Hands

The reason there are so many bachelors is because the men don't know how to propose. There are no set rules for proposing, but it is usually done in the presence of the girl.

If you don't want to waste time the best way to do is to go down and see her lawyer.

A lot of people think that a proposal is agony. The proposing is painless; it's the marriage that hurts.

The best way to do is to find a single girl and tell her that you can support her in a manner to which she has been unaccustomed, and if she wants to take a chance you will see that she eats as often as possible.

Try to propose on Saturday, then you'll have the whole week-end to think up excuses to back out of it.

Then you want to give her a ring. You don't want to, but you're supposed to.

Always have it engraved so that you can tell it from the others.

A woman wears the ring on the left hand. This is so that when she hits you with the right she won't chip the diamond.

Always buy the ring on the installment plan and if you don't love her enough to keep up the payments you should break the engagement.

Never get nervous, while you're proposing. To show how calm you are, smoke a cigarette. If you want to appear extra calm, smoke two cigarettes.

Don't laugh at a man for proposing to a girl, if he wants to propose, that's his business. Maybe he has another business, too.

Remember, girls, never laugh at the way a fellow proposes to you, maybe he's out of practice.

He's got to rehearse on somebody.

Don't be nervous while he's putting the ring on your hand. You've got four fingers and he's bound to lasso one of them.

It doesn't take any certain length of time to propose. One fellow may be a "Man of the Hour" and others might be "Minute Men."

If your sweetheart wants the engagement kept a secret, don't tell anybody. Maybe he hasn't broken the last one yet.

If your chum gets a nice diamond engagement ring, don't get jealous. Maybe you'll be wearing it next year.

Always remember, it's a poor engagement ring that doesn't change hands.

PASSING TO ERA OF ELECTRICITY, SAYS HAPGOOD

Declares Water Power Will Eventually Serve Centres of Industry

By NORMAN HAPGOOD

Staff Correspondent of Boston American.

Washington, Aug. 5.—An epoch-marking report on water power has been turned in to the Federal Power Commission. You will observe I say epoch-marking, not epoch-making. There's a reason.

We are about to pass from the age of steam into the age of electric power. Of course, all powers will be used, but their relative importance will change.

In proportion coal will count much less. Petroleum will count relatively more. Water power turned into electric power will count most of all.

The report to which I refer, that is now about to be printed, gives a comprehensive, striking picture of the role that water power is to play in American industry as soon as practical business catches up with applied science.

The report recommends a tremendous trunk line of power running roughly parallel to the Atlantic coast and about a hundred inland.

TO SERVE BOSTON.

This main line will tap the great sources of water power in New York and Pennsylvania, and will furnish power as far West as Ohio, as far North as to connect with the St. Lawrence plan, as far East as Boston and as far South as Georgia.

Thus it will become the main source of power for industry in the greatest industrial region of the United States.

It provides for co-ordination of water power and coal power in such proportions that the so-called peak, or hours of greatest using of power, shall be taken care of.

It goes far to change the whole face of the coal hauling problem, and in doing that to change the whole nature of the railroad problem, since coal today is 46 per cent. of railroad tonnage and the most profitable of all branches of freight.

COAL FOR SUPPLEMENT LINE.

Under this plan—the super-power plan, as it is called—the coal, instead of being hauled all over the place, will in the main be used at the mouth of the mine. Power houses built alongside the mine will connect up with the trunk line of water power and be used when needed to supplement the power furnished from the trunk line.

A similar plan has already been worked out in England by a commission headed by Lord Haldane.

The idea is not one that affects tomorrow or the day after, but it affects the whole future of industry, conservation and civilization.

It will take time to put into effect, but when it is once in effect, if the government keeps a proper control on resources that belong to all the people, to you and to me, then every single article of use should cost us distinctly less on account of this last brilliant victory of man over nature.

INTERESTS MAY GET IT.

No doubt the value of the whole step ahead will be endangered by propaganda in favor of special interests. There will be the usual smooth stuff explaining how all the advantages of such scientific progress should be turned over to the rich men who are virtuous enough to be willing to accept the fruits of new discoveries made at government expense.

Thus on a mighty scale will be offered the same problem that on a smaller scale I wrote about the other day. I pointed out the danger that before the value of Henry Ford's offer can be properly appraised, inside interests may gobble up Muscle Shoals.

Today I point out, far in advance, the results of a scientific government investigation, and ask the public whether it will keep an eye on the results or lie down and go to sleep while the big interests come out the only beneficiaries.

HUB LEATHER DEALER IS HELD AS FUGITIVE

Alfred Adnoff, forty-eight years old, of Blue Hill avenue, Dorchester, a leather dealer with offices at No. 153 Summer street, was arrested by Inspector Finn of police headquarters as a fugitive from justice and held in $5,000 bail for a hearing August 13. It is alleged that Adnoff is wanted by the New York City police on the charge of larceny of 8,000 yards of cloth, now valued at $14,000, and 500 pounds of grain valued at $5,000, the property of the Andrews Mills Company of New York. It is alleged that the larceny was committed on May 7.

BARTENDER AND SALOON OWNER FINED $50 EACH

Joseph Forti, proprietor of a barroom, was fined $50 and sentenced to nine months in the House of Correction by Judge Burke in Municipal Court for maintaining a common nuisance in his establishment on Washington street near Northampton street, South End. James Parks, a bartender in Forti's saloon, and Charles Donnegan, arrested at the same time as the other two men, were fined $50 each for keeping and exposing intoxicating liquor for sale. The three men appealed.

JAPAN ASSURED OF PRELIMINARY CONFAB

Tokyo, Aug. 5.—Premier Hara is quoted by the Nichi Nichi and other Japanese papers as declaring that a preliminary conference to President Harding's disarmament meeting is assured. He is quoted as saying that the preliminary meeting will be held at the request of Japan but what powers have been invited to attend the preliminary meeting was not indicated. The preliminary meeting, he said, would be held in Washington.

PAY BILL OR LOSE WATER, WESTFIELD ULTIMATUM

PARSON OWNER WILL ANSWER HIS TENANTS

Brookline Minister Landlord to Fight Charges of Rent Profiteering

Rev. Edward L. Gulick of No. 77 Addington road, Brookline, says he will go before the State Commission on Necessaries of Life today, with a lawyer, and his real estate agent, Frank A. Russell of Coolidge Corner, prepared to rfute the charges of his tenants that he has been profiteering in rentals.

Some of his fifteen tenants have appealed to the commission for adjustment of alleged wrongs to them in the way of excessive rents, coal clauses and other objectionable features of their leases.

Rev. Mr. Gulick no longer practices the ministry, but is engaged in the lumber and real estate business, and in addition, with his wife, operates the Aloha Camps for girls. One of his camps is Camp Aloha at Fairlee, Vt., another called Aloha Hive is at South Fairlee, and a third named Aloha Club is at Pike, N. H.

He says he will submit to the Commission on Necessaries of Life that his average net income for the last three years has been less than he could make in other investments than real estate.

He figures his net income two ways. One is the return on his equity in the property and allows for outstanding mortgages, and the other is according to the cost of the property to him. It is on the equity basis, he said, he expects to be judged by the State Commission.

From September 1, 1918, to September 1, 1919, he said his net income was $609.83. This is 1.9 per cent. on an equity of $31,825, and 2.8 per cent. on a cost of $21,240.

From September 1, 1919, to September 1, 1920, Rev. Mr. Gulick says his net income was $828.51, or 2.6 per cent. on an equity of $31,825, or 3.8 per cent. on a cost of $21,240.

He said his net income for the eleven months ended August 1, 1921, was $2,100. This is 4.8 per cent. on an equity of $43,775, or 9 per cent. on a cost price of $22,640.

EQUITY BASIS FAIR.

"The fair way for the commission to decide whether I have been profiteering or not," declared Rev. Mr. Gulick, "is on the equity basis.

"Taken on an average, my net income on the equity basis has been 3.3 per cent. This cannot be called profiteering. Even if they choose to consider according to the actual cost of the property, my average net income amounts to only 5.2 per cent. Neither is that profiteering."

Edward Goodman of No. Browne street complained to the commission that his rent had been boosted from $50 a month to $95. He said he had a two-year lease, but now that the lease has expired, he is being "soaked" to make up for the year he escaped.

MADE SHREWD BARGAIN.

Rev. Mr. Gulick, commenting on this said: "Mr. Goodman made a shrewd bargain, whereby I was the loser. I have been carrying him the last year at a loss. He has been getting his apartment below cost. I did not ask him to pay $95. I requested him to move."

Other complainants were Felix L. Lamar of No. 80 Browne street and Orrin E. Hodsdon of No. 4 Strathmore road, Brookline.

'Home Brew' While You Wait at Westfield Picnics

Westfield, Aug. 5.—Picnickers here do not carry their home brew with them. They make it on the picnic grounds while you wait.

Police officials have discovered that some of the picnickers carried boilers, coils and all the equipment necessary for the manufacture of "home brew" to the picnic grounds, and that the home-made "stuff" was made right on the grounds during the course of the picnic.

SEEK STEAMER FOR VETERANS' HOSPITAL

A request for the loan of a Shipping Board steamer, to provide ocean outings for disabled war veterans of Massachusetts, has been made to Chairman A. D. Lasker of the board and Senators Lodge and Walsh. The request was made in letters by Dr. Eugene J. McCarthy, chairman of the American Legion hospitalization committee, and State Adjutant Leo A. Spillane.

The legion hopes eventually that one of the steamers may be given permanently to the hospitalization committee to be roofed over and moored in the vicinity of North End Park as a floating hospital.

NEARLY DROWNS IN ATTEMPTED RESCUE

Dorchester Man Dragged Down by Boy He Went to Help; Both Are Saved

While swimming at Savin Hill Beach about 100 yards from the shore, Cornelius J. Callahan, seventeen years old of No. 8 Batchelder street, Dorchester, became exhausted and sank. Patrick Dyanan of No. 24 Alexander street, Dorchester, hearing Callahan's cry for help, swam out to him.

Callahan obtained a grip on Dyanan and, in the struggle which ensued, both sank.

John Healey of No. 197 Savin Hill avenue, Dorchester, and Frederick Linstrom of No. 108 Welles avenue, Dorchester, went to the rescue of the drowning men.

After separating the pair Healey and Linstrom finally succeeded in bringing them safely to shore.

Callahan and Dyanan were rushed to the City Hospital where they are suffering from shock and immersion.

FOUR CHILDREN PERISH IN N. Y. TENEMENT FIRE

Three Others Dangerously Injured; 7 Rescued in Spectacular Manner

By International News Service.

New York, Aug. 5.—Four children were killed and three others dangerously injured in a fire which swept a crowded tenement house in Stanne's avenue, The Bronx, today. Seven persons were rescued from the roof and from window ledges in a spectacular manner by firemen and policemen.

Julio Corsine and his wife, father and mother of the dead children were rescued.

The dead children, ranging from five to fourteen years old, were all of the Corsine family, which occupied the fourth floor. Mr. and Mrs. Julio Corsine escaped, carrying two of their little children to safety down the rear fire escape. After they had descended flames cut off the rear of the house and it was impossible to rescue the remaining children.

Fire, of undetermined origin, broke out shortly after 3 a. m., spread rapidly upwards and mushroomed into the adjoining houses. Dense smoke poured up the narrow stairways and the shrieks of the escaping lodgers, mingled with the roar of the flames, drove those on the upper stories into a panic.

The fire was confined to the rear of the building at the beginning and this drove those upstairs to seek escape at the front, where, according to the police, they found no fire escapes.

On the third floor the Taylor family, with five children, was cut off by the flames. Firemen rescued four as they were ready to jump. Mrs. Catherine Taylor and her little son, Herbert, four years old, and Rose Fitzpatrick, thirteen, were cut off and seriously burned before they could be taken out. They are at a hospital, where small hope is held for their recovery.

Three other Taylor children, Warren, Charles and Andrew, between thirteen and fifteen years old, were burned or injured in escaping, and Andrew Taylor, father of the boys, was badly hurt in getting his family to safety. Ten families lived in the building.

News of Motion Picture World

By FRIEDA DAVIS

ONCE again Boston is entertaining a movie star, this time Jack Hoxie, the cowboy hero of the Arrow Co.'s two-reel "Westerns." Hoxie, let me add, is a real cowboy. He doesn't appear on the screen in chaps and on the street in a frock coat. He's not that sort of an actor. Hoxie wears his full regalia wherever he goes and has come galloping into Boston waving his lariat and brandishing an imposing revolver.

His visit East is not complete without a call on his Hub fans. For that reason he is appearing at the Bowdoin Square Theatre in conjunction with his film and makes a speech between reels. Not only that, but Hoxie gives a "Will Rogers act," shows his skill with the rope and makes pertinent remarks between twirls.

We've had visits from the becurled and be-ruffled ingenues, the stately vampires, and the suave leading men, but this is the first time a real, "roughridin'" hero has ventured so far from his Western haunts. Hoxie claims that what he is gunning for here is a new leading lady. For that reason he took his lariat to the Arena with him last night and looked over the dancers with an eye to roping the best looking girl to play opposite him in his pictures.

ANTI-CENSORSHIP FILM.

MARSHALL NEILAN is busy making a picture under the auspices of the Public Rights League of America and it is to be an anti-censorship film. The scenario was written by Mr. Neilan and will be directed by him.

Rupert Hughes has been persuaded to write titles—and Hughes' titles are known for their pithyness. Many of the best-known stars of the film colony of Hollywood will take part in the picture.

BALLINS' VACATION.

WHEN one turns out such spectacular successes as "Pagan Love," East Lynne," "The Journey's End" and "Jane Eyre," and then starts work on a super-special production of "Jane Eyre," one deserves something remarkable in the way of a vacation. Hugo and Mabel Ballin thought so, too, and made plans to leave for a three weeks' cruise among the Bermudas.

Just about a year ago this director-artist and his talented actress-wife started their own producing company. Since then they have made the four films mentioned above, and each of those already shown have been a decided hit. "The Journey's End," besides being remarkable for its manner of production, is known as the second picture to be made without subtitles.

MAX LINDER'S ACTIVITIES

MAX LINDER is preparing to follow up his first comedy for Robertson-Cole, "Seven Years' Bad Luck," with a still better one, "Behold My Wife."

Linder, who doesn't believe in rushing things and who spends months in making one five or six-reel feature, came to New York several weeks ago with a proof of this picture. The reception it received at a private showing was so satisfactory that he has hurried back to Hollywood to start work on his third.

STAR DENIES MARRIAGE REPORT.

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG

ALTHOUGH she refused for two days to give an interview on the subject of her reported marriage to Arthur Doe, Clara Kimball Young has finally issued an emphatic denial that she has even been contemplating such a step. Mr. Doe is a mining man of Ross Valley, California. Miss Young's announcement was pithy and to the point.

"I don't even know the man," she said. So that's that.

HE "OBEYED THAT IMPULSE."

HAVE you a budding scenarist in your home? Count that day lost when someone doesn't think up a plot that would tempt a Griffith or a DeMille and immediately set it down in black and white.

Hiram Percy Maxim, inventor of the Maxim silencer, is the latest to "obey that impulse." He wrote the story of the newest Pearl White feature, "A Virgin's Paradise," which has just been shown in New York. Some time ago Mr. and Mrs. Maxim, who make their home in Hartford, Ct., expressed a disapproval of the usual run of screen stories, and being the sort who can do as well as talk, they set about remedying matters. The result is "A Virgin's Paradise," which was immediately accepted by the Fox concern.

SENNETT THE SERIOUS.

THAT Mack Sennett is serious about his determination to forsake the bathing beaches around Los Angeles for the more dramatic "sets" of the studios, is certain. Charlie Murray and Kalla Pashe, two of his bathing comedy standbys, have followed the example of Ford Sterling, Louise Fazenda, Teddy, the Great Dane, and Marie Prevost. They have left the Sennett fold and have been signed up by various other concerns.

Meanwhile Sennett has kept his fountain pen busy signing contracts with Ethel Grey Terry, Jack Mulhall, Lowell Sherman—who doesn't remember him in "Way Down East"—and other prominent players. His only remaining hold on the comic side of the program is Ben Turpin, whom he will star in a series of two-reelers, the first of which will be "Love's Outcast."

MEDFORD FIRE CHIEF OUSTED BY MAYOR

Qualey, Dropped "for the Good of the Service," Fights Dismissal

Fire Chief Thomas A. Qualey of Medford has been removed from office after thirty years of service by Mayor Benjamin F. Haines.

But Qualey, ousted "for the good of the service," according to the Mayor, refuses to vacate his office until he has determined his rights.

Mayor Haines' action in removing Chief Qualey has aroused considerable excitement in Medford and has resulted in many of the citizens taking sides, some favoring the chief's removal while others argue for his retention.

Captain William R. Ordway was notified by the mayor that he had been temporarily appointed as acting Fire Chief. When he appeared at the Central Fire station to take charge he was met by Chief Qualey who stood by his guns and refused to turn over the keys and the authority to Ordway.

"I do not feel," said Chief Qualey to Ordway, " that I can take the responsibility on my shoulders of turning the department over to some one else until I have determined my own rights."

Methodists to Lift Dancing Ban, Says Pastor's Son

New York, Aug. 5.—The Methodist church will soon lift the ban against the actor, dancer and card player, according to Henry Smythe, son of a prominent Philadelphia Methodist pastor and honorary member of the American Association of Masters of Dancing, today.

Smythe, both dancer and Methodist, says there are many others like himself and that Bishop Berry, who last year proclaimed the ban, will be repudiated.

The convention of American dancing masters today elected as second vice-president O. F. C. Heinemann of Boston; secretary, George F. Waters, Waltham, Mass., and as treasurer, W. U. Sobe, Hartford, Ct.

WATERTOWN TAX RATE BOOSTED $5 FOR 1921

A $5 increase in the 1921 tax rate for Watertown is announced by the assessors. The new rate, $31.20, is the highest in the town's history.

It is caused largely by unusually heavy expenses in laying out streets.

"GIRLS MUST WORK TO KEEP BEAUTY"

says Florenz Ziegfeld, Jr., and he knows. The strict rules of living that a stage beauty must observe, the things that she must go without, the hours she must keep, etc., are all dwelt upon and illustrated in the remarkable story by the famous "chorus-picker" in next Sunday's Advertiser.

STOCK EXCHANGE FIRM ASSIGNS TO CREDITORS

Liabilities of Hugh Dimond & Co. Said to Be Partly Covered

It is announced on the Boston Stock Exchanged today that Hugh Dimond & Co. have assigned. It is understood that stock exchange liabilities are partly covered.

Stewart C. Woodworth, attorney for the trustees, said: "The brokerage firm of Hugh J. Dimon & Co., members of the New York and Boston Stock Exchanges, has this morning made a general assignment to Daniel J. Lyne of Boston, who will act as trustee for the protection of their creditors.

"The trustee has taken over the office at No. 31 State street. Within a few days, as soon as accountants who have been engaged can make a report, a statement will be issued as to the condition of the firm."

The firm of Hugh J. Dimond & Co. was formed in 1919. It consisted of Hugh J. Dimond and John C [illegible], Jr. Its business is comparatively small. Its difficulties have arisen from a gradual impairment of working capital.

DECLINES SOVIET INVITATION TO MOSCOW

Director of U. S. Relief Would Give Reds Supplies at Riga

London, Aug. 5.—Walter L. Brown, director of American relief in Europe, has declined the Soviet's invitation to go to Moscow to discuss in detail the plans and conditions of America's help to the starving, disease-ridden millions in the interior.

Director Brown said today that he was only going to Riga and would not enter Russia proper unless something unforseen developed.

All the American citizens whose release from prison has been promised by the Soviet in return for American relief are expected at Riga within a few days, where they will be cared for by representatives of the American Red Cross.

Headquarters for the distribution of American food, clothing and medicines will be established at Riga.

According to present plans the supplies at Riga will be taken over by the Soviet, which will distribute them through agencies created at Moscow.

In that event no American relief workers will go beyond the Russian frontier.

All the operator need do is to set the dial at any of the combinations and the result will always follow. Every human element is missing from device. (Int.)

WILLIAM TELL, 1921! "Nerve," speaking colloquially, is a common characteristic nowadays, but it really required super-nerve for this little girl to allow Sergt.-Maj. Eggleton of the British army to cut an apple from back of her neck while blind-folded at Morton sport carnival. (W. W.)

DURABLE! This, of course refers to the bathing suit this charming young Californian is wearing. It is made of corduroy and is guaranteed against the fickle weather of the coast, rain or shine, pebbly beach or soft. Durable suits of this type are fast overtaking the filmy flimsy silk affairs so popular at the coast resorts. (U. & U.)

FIREMEN SAVE 20 IN GREEN ST. BLAZE

Lodgers Narrowly Escape Death in West End; Infant Carried Out by Mother

Twenty persons, including two women and three children, were endangered in the three upper floors of a four-story brick building at No. 83 Green street, West End, early today, while a blaze raged in the ground floor, filling the stairway with dense smoke and almost blocking this sole means of exit.

A dry goods store owned by Charles Sklar occupies the lower floor. Mrs. Mary Mezuk, who conducts a lodging house on the upper three floors, was awakened by smoke. A conductor on a passing trolley car hearing her shrieks of "Fire, fire," sounded the alarm.

While Mrs. Mezuk grasped her ten-months-old baby in her arms Patrolmen Graham and McKay of the Joy street station grabbed up the other two children and guided Mrs. Mezuk, almost frantic, to the open air.

A number of the male lodgers were compelled to flee in their night clothes. Daniel Mullane, sleeping on the third floor, awoke to the smell of smoke and grabbing up his clothes on a chair beside the bed attempted to get out through the front exit. He became confused in the smoke-filled corridors and was nearly exhausted when assisted out by firemen.

Margaret O'Brien, sleeping on the top floor, was almost unconscious when firemen reached her room. They placed her on the fire escape and she recovered in a few minutes.

Many of the lodgers escaped by climbing ladders from the roof of the burning building to the top of the five-story structure at No. 85 Green street.

Firemen claim that whe they arrived they found a number of small fires burning briskly in several parts of the dry goods store. The damage was estimated at $3,500.

An order of notice has been made returnable before Judge De Courcy on Tuesday next.

STARTLED FROM SLEEP, LEAPS OUT WINDOW

Grafton Girl Breaks Wrist, to Find Noise Was Made by Sleepwalker

Grafton, Aug 5.—Miss Elizabeth Barrett is confined to her room at her River road home today suffering from injuries sustained when she leaped from the second story of the house, to escape, as she believed, from burglars.

She was asleep when she was awakened by the sound of a chair overturned on the floor below. Then came the soft padding of footsteps and in terror she ran to the window and jumped.

She landed on a large rock, fracturing the bones in her right wrist and sustaining bruises and other minor hurts.

Neighbors awakened by her cries went to aid her and a party composed of Daniel Ward and others searched the Barrett house. They found that a young girl visiting the place, who was a sleepwalker, had been wakened by Miss Barrett's cries, and found herself in the Barrett parlor.

FAVOR GIBBONS TO WIN OVER PLATTS TONIGHT

By JACK CONWAY.

Mike Gibbons rules a favorite over Gus Platts, European middleweight champion, for their ten-round international battle at the Boston Arena tonight. The speculative element is of the opinion that Gibbons' dazzling speed as a boxer and brilliant ring generalship will enable him to surge to victory.

Platts, although a stranger to Boston and New England fans, does not lack for backers. He comes here heralded as a real headliner and his record supports the many kind things said about him by Manager Charley Harvey.

* * *

It will be the first time that Gibbons has received any serious opposition in a Boston ring. The St. Paul man has usually been pitted against an opponent who didn't have much of a chance of scoring a victory.

The fact that Gibbons is out to win the world's middleweight championship has added interest to the match. Mike took it to heart when Johnny Wilson won the title from Mike O'Dowd. Gibbons and O'Dowd are close friends and after the latter was dethroned the former made it known that he was going to do a come-back. He tried to secure a tussle with Wilson as a starter, but was unsuccessful. Gibbons then signed for battles in all parts of the country. He declared he would fight all-comers and that he would compel Wilson to give him recognition.

* * *

Since casting his well-known hat into the ring, Gibbons has taken part in eleven bouts. He won six of them on points, while he grabbed the honors in the other tussles by scoring with the big wallop.

Gibbons avers that his kayo punch will be on the job this p. m. Mike, like one Jack Dempsey, doesn't think a lot of the European fighters. He believes he can easily beat Platts, while he has an idea he would not experience much trouble in trouncing a lot of the European light-heavyweights. Maybe Gibbons knows whereof he speaks.

* * *

Charles Harvey, who is in Boston with Platts, says the English middleweight will prove a sensation.

"I should know fighters, as I have managed some of the greatest ring men to ever come to America from England," declared Harvey today. "Jem Driscoll, Owen Moran and Ted (Kid) Lewis proved sensations, but you will forget all about the brilliant feats of these warriors once you see Platts perform. He is the real goods in the fighting line. If I had any other view, I would never have matched him to meet Gibbons, whom I consider the greatest middleweight in America."

Gibbons and Platts will be supported by a strong preliminary card.

* * *

Reservations may be secured during the day at the Arena A. C.'s downtown office, Room 15, No. 28 School street, and in the evening at the Arena.

* * *

Martin Burke, the New Orleans heavyweight who meets Ted Jamieson at the Armory A. A. a week from tonight at Mechanics Building under the auspices of the Armory A. A., is a very satisfactory performer. He has won referees' decisions over Willie Meehan and Captain Bob Roper and was sparring partner for Jack Dempsey while the champion was training for the Carpentier fight. Burke is under the direction of Eddie Mead, manager of Joe Lynch.

* * *

Jimmy Fruzzetti of Brockton is training like a Trojan for his ten-round battle with Johnny Clinton for the New England lightweight title, which will be the semi-windup to the Martin Burke-Ted Jamieson mill. When Clinton and Fruzzetti met last Winter at the Grand Opera House it was one of the fastest lightweight contests ever staged in the Hub. Both boys displayed an abundance of class and it was a bitter mill from the first bell until the last.

* * *

If they put up anywhere near the same kind of a battle the members are in for a fistic treat. Besides the two windups there will be two eights, one Bova of the West End meets Kid Kansas of Providence in the opener, and in the other Tony Julien, the satisfactory Brockton 135-pounder, will swap punches with Mack Murphy.

* * *

The following statement explains itself:

"Shaver O'Brien, who is now under the management of his brother, James, is out to challenge and 142-pounder in New England including Nate Siegel, Paul Doyle, Eddie Shevlin and will also take on Frankie Schoels, Eddie Fitzsimmons and Young Gradwell at 138 pounds.

"Shaver has two draws with Nate Siegel at a time when Siegel was at his best. It will be remembered that Shaver and Siegel put up two torrid fights at the Commercial A. C., both of which ended in a draw, and now Shaver is in better condition than he ever was in his life. We would like to get Siegel into the ring just once more and if Shaver can't come out victorious over the pride of Revere, then we will be willing to hang up the gloves for all times. To back up the above, I have 300 iron men that Shaver can take him.

"JAMES 'PINGO' O'BRIEN."

* * *

Messrs. Conley and Carter write:

"Notice the sayings of the wise Billy Henderson in your column. Nate Siegel's style was never changed, but was improved on, and if he boxed in the two rounds that he lost, as he did when he stopped Paddy Flynn, outpointed Ted Kid Lewis, put it all over Paul Doyle, and stopped Marty Summers, he would have easily beat Laiso and Doyle.

"Have not noticed where Shevlin stopped Summers or Flynn, in fact, had his hands full to squeak out a win. Siegel was never knocked down in his fighting career, let alone knocked out. We acknowledge Shevlin has something on Siegel in regard to receiving K. O.'s, and will only mention the one Kloby gave him. Take Nate's fight with Kloby and compare the two Shevlin had with him. From that standpoint Nate has it on him, as Nate scored two knockdowns and beat him very easily, while Shevlin was knocked out and received a close decision.

"The reason we did not have Nate take on Eddie was that we never received an offer that appealed to us, although Nate begged us to go get him a bout with Shevlin, as he always felt he could beat him, after being robbed of the decision in his last bout with him.

"We don't think the fans will overlook the fact that after Shevlin was offered a bout with Ted Kid Lewis and quit, that Nate took Lewis on and beat him."

Friedman - Herman Battle for Bantam Title Aug. 29

Abe Friedman, New England bantamweight champion, has been signed to meet Pete Herman, world's title holder, in a ten-round bout at Shibe Park, Philadelphia, on August 29.

Herman recently regained the world's championship when he defeated Joe Lynch in New York.

Herman has lost two starts to Young Montreal of Providence, who, in turn, has been beaten twice by Friedman.

MIKE GIBBONS IS TOO FAST FOR RATNER

Milwaukee Middleweight Batters Bronx Boxer at Will, Gaining Easy Verdict

New York, Aug. 5.—Mike Gibbons, who will meet Gus Platts at Boston tonight, displayed a lot of his old-time skill last night before a capacity crowd at Dyckman Oval, easily earning the verdict of the judges over Augie Ratner, the middleweight of the Bronx. The St. Paul battler was too fast for Ratner, and, taking a long lead in the opening session, he raced along in front like a real fighter.

Augie could not get out of the way of Mike's left jab and when he tried to get in close the westerner pounded away at Ratner's mid-section until the latter was willing to clinch. Gibbons, however, has lost his knock-out punch. Many times during the milling he shot over his right but he failed to drop the Bronxite.

In the fourth round he landed a right chop flush on the chin. Ratner staggered back a few feet, but held his feet. In the last round Gibbons peppered Ratner with everything he had, but Augie managed to weather the storm. Ratner did not land a solid punch throughout the fight.

FIVE CHAMPIONS IN CYCLE RACES SATURDAY

Five champions, three of them holders of world's titles, will figure in the bicycle competition at the Revere track tomorrow night. In the forty-mile paced race Georges Seres, world's champion; George Chapman, American champion; Vincent Madonna, leading Italian rider, and Charley Vekeyn of Belgium will battle.

Oscar Egg, champion unpaced rider of the world, and Willie Coburn, leading pursuit rider of the world, will meet in a special series of races. The first heat will be at sprint style, which favors Egg, while Coburn has the call in the pursuit race which follows. If a third heat is necessary a toss of a coin will decide its nature.

Ned Chandler's win of the two-thirds-mile race Wednesday was most popular with the fans. This colored star has reached the form he has been seeking all season and will be dangerous in all future races.

BOSTON YACHTSMEN GUESTS OF ROYAL FAMILY

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Aug. 5.—Four American yachtsmen, owners or part owners of the American yachts competing with a British team for the British-American cup, were entertained at dinner aboard the royal yacht Victoria and Albert, by King George and the Queen.

The guests were Frank C. Paine and John L. Saltonstall of Boston and W. A. W. Stewart and Paul L. Hammond of New York.

HATHERLY OPEN TOURNAMENT ON TODAY

Blanchard, Who Holds Record for Course Among the Entries

By Robert E. Harlow

Golfers turned their attention to the Hatherly Country Club today, where today and Saturday the annual open tournament is on. Open certainly is the word to apply to these Hatherly meetings. They open up everything they have down there when the golfers make the annual visit.

* * *

It appears that there is some discussion concerning the record for the new eighteen-hole course. According to one announcement the record is 75 and was made by Jimmy Walsh, one of Greater Boston's best junior players. As a matter of fact, William Blanchard of Woodland holds the record, a 72. In making the 72 Blanchard is willing to agree that he was at the top of his game—but the figure goes.

* * *

In order to prove that he was playing seriously when he made that 72, the Woodland golfer has entered for the tournament and he has a keen desire to duplicate his remarkable mark or lower it. He will play his round Saturday and is entitled to a share of the gallery. Ouimet, Guilford and Wright have all announced that they would not feel peeved if Blanchard took some of the spectators.

* * *

Saturday will be the big day, with a luncheon served by the ladies and a dance in the evening. One of the fine things about the luncheon is that it is table d'hote, or at least the food is spread out on tables and everyone helps themselves and there is no one to count the number of pilgrimages golfers make to the tables.

* *

H. Hodgkinson of Filenes, the inspiration of retail store golf tournaments, has selected a nice list of prizes for those who play at Bellevue Saturday morning in the merchants' handicap. The list includes golf shoes, golf bag, a spoon and a special net prize for the best score made by a newspaper man. Post entries accepted.

* * *

Congressman Allen E. Treadway of Stockbridge played a number of rounds at the Tedesco Country Club recently. According to Billy Hoare, the professional, Congressman Treadway averaged between 85 and 90 for his rounds, which indicates that he is no duffer. Wonder if he can beat President Harding?

* * *

A. W. Huguley and Hoare will compose an amateur-pro team from Tedesco for the tournament of the New England Golfers' Association at Worcester, Monday next.

* * *

The ninth hole at the Tedesco Country Club is being rebuilt. The present length is 350 yards. The new hole will be 450 yards, a fine dogleg, which will require two hard wooden shots to reach the green, to register the par four.

* * *

The Wollaston golf course was never in better condition. Westerners who come from parched and burned out fairways at their home clubs marvel at the fine texture and green coloring in the fairways and putting surfaces at Wollaston.

* * *

Wollaston has a five-player caddy team that issues a challenge to any club in the State. The boys have defeated Woodland five to nothing at Woodland, and Thursday at Wollaston they won from Woodland four to nothing. Woodland only sent four players. The Wollaston boys are Jock and Charles McAndrews, Eddie Morgan, L. Hurtle and M. Baker. Jock McAndrews has been around Wollaston twice in 72.

GOTHAM READY TO STAGE WILSON-DOWNEY GO

By Jack Veiock

New York, Aug. 5.—If Johnny Wilson wants to clear up the middleweight title muddle quickly to prove that he is still champion, as he claims, he can do it right here in little ole New York.

The New York State Boxing Commission, it was explained by Commissioner Tom O'Rourke today, will permit Bryan Downey and Wilson to box within its jurisdiction provided they box among themselves.

Otherwise they must go elsewhere and have it out before either will be permitted to box in the Empire State.

"The decision of the commission," said O'Rourke, "was misinterpreted by certain parties at the outset. The bars are not up against Wilson and Downey if they want to meet here, but they will not be permitted to box anyone else until they have settled their dispute somewhere.

"Wilson already has a New York license, but he will not be permitted to use it again until he meets Downey. If he is matched with Downey the latter will be granted a license at once.

"This decision was reached by the commission after careful consideration of all reports from Cleveland. These reports, however, were unofficial. We have not received an official report from the Cleveland Boxing Commission."

* * *

Speaking for himself and not as a member of the New York commission, O'Rourke indicated that he, personally, believes that Wilson is the champion of his class until he is beaten "regularly."

* * *

That is, until a referee's decision or the decision of a referee and two judges settles the differences between him and Downey.

In other words, the veteran boxing official thinks the Cleveland commission should have stood behind the referee, Jimmy Gardner, inasmuch as they set aside their rules to permit him to officiate. This opinion is growing among members of the boxing fraternity.

Meanwhile Jimmy Dunn, manager of Downey, has his fighter here seeking a match with somebody, and is willing to take on Wilson if the Charlestown battler will agree.

"Nothing will please Downey better than to meet Wilson at the middleweight limit in a New York ring," said Dunn today. "We are ready to fight and show our good faith.

"If Wilson is ready, so much the better. The only fault I find with the ruling of the New York commission is that it leaves Downey in the hole, as he must box Wilson or no one, and he will be left out in the cold as far as New York is concerned if Wilson refuses to meet him."

So it's up to Johnny. New York promoters stand ready to make the match the minute the fighters will agree to meet on Gotham soil.

SHALLOW WATER DIVE KILLS FOOTBALL STAR

Chicago, Aug. 5.—Harold Lifvendahl, University of Illinois football star, who was employed as a lifeguard at a bathing beach here, died in a hospital of a broken neck. Lifvendahl, who had a record of having saved twenty persons from drowning this Summer, was injured a few days ago when he dived into shallow water.

PARKER REACHES FINALS IN TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Seabright, N. J. Aug. 5.—On the turf courts of the Rumson Country Club George Parker reached the final round in the open junior tournament by defeating A. Persons in a five-set match, 5—7, 6—2, 6—2, 4—6, 6—3, and Harold Scott in straight sets, 6—2, 6—4, 6—1.

Browns Beat Athletics

Philadelphia, Aug. 5.—The Athletics scored four runs in a ninth inning rally yesterday, but it wasn't enough to cut down the Browns' early lead, and St. Louis won, 7 to 6.

Joe Dugan was back in the game for the Athletics. He made one hit and fielded his position at third without an error.

BRITISH DAVIS CUP STARS TIE FOR HONORS

Battle Today for Chance to Meet the Danish Team at Cleveland

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 5.—With honors even as a result of the first day's play the British and Australian Davis Cup teams were out today to "get the jump" in their contest at the Allegheny Country Club. The winners will meet the Danish team at Cleveland.

The schedule today called for play at 2 p. m. with Ogden and Woosnam pitted against Anderson and Todd, who returned to the game this season after a layoff of a year.

The opening matches between the rival British Empire teams developed good and bad tennis. The Anderson-Woosnam match, in which the former scored a victory for Australia, was a battle royal, while that between Gordon Lowe, veteran Davis Cup player, and Hawkes the youthful antipodean, was a romp for Lowe.

CAHILL AND LEE IN BOUT AT WORCESTER

Billy Cahill, Everett lightweight, and Kid Lee of Worcester are ready for their ten-round bout at Boulevard Park, Worcester, tomorrow afternoon. Both boys are confident of victory.

Cahill says his punching power will enable him to finish in front. Lee is just as certain that skill and speed will triumph. A big crowd is expected to take in the tussle.

BRAVES WIND UP CUBS SERIES TODAY THEN HIKE FOR ST LOUIS

It was Hugh McQuillan's turn to [illegible] the mound, unless Flanagan, who [illegible] a thing Thursday, decided to take another shot at it. Hughie has been beaten twice on this excursion and is overdue to turn in a winning effort.

The Braves leave for St. Louis tonight, play there four days and then hike for home, welcome and a series with the Western clubs.

Champions Second by Losing Both Games to Senators

The Clevelands lost both games of a double-header with Washington. They also lost the leading position in the league race. The Yankees lost to Detroit, but they suffered a drop of seven points only, while the Indians sustained a loss of 13 points, from .633 to .620. The margin isn't very much but it would be enough on which to decide a championship. The Yankees dropped from .628 to .621.

Meanwhile the Senators are coming with a rush.

Leading New England Institutions Affiliate

OF particular interest to the sportsmen and sportswomen of New England will be the announcement that William Read and Sons, the leading sporting goods house in New England, have affiliated with the Winchester Company.

This step has been taken with a view to increasing and improving the service to the sport-loving public and in the belief that a business alliance of these two leaders in the mercantile and manufacturing fields is bound to result in a greater advantage to the public.

William Read & Sons will still be under the personal direction of Mr. J. Bertram Read, and the present store personnel will be retained, so that patrons are assured of the same courteous attention and service which has been characteristic of this house for over ninety years.

IN the days when the fleet clipper ships, were carrying products of New England to every port in the Seven Seas, they established a trade supremacy which flourished because it was built upon a foundation of fair dealing and honest merchandise.

This policy of fair dealing was incorporated into the business principles of the local merchants and when William Read in 1826 opened his "Gun Store", in Dock Square, it followed naturally that his business would be conducted in accordance with these principles.

From a modest beginning the business continued to grow and prosper and during the Civil War rose to national importance through supplying the government with large quantities of ordnance and supplies.

A strict adherence to the solid business principles of its earlier years, and an unfailing attention to courtesy and service in its dealings with the public, has established for this firm an enviable reputation with the sport loving public, and as "The Outdoors Store" it is an undoubted authority on sporting goods and outfits.

At their present location, 364 Washington St., a most complete and modern stock of sporting equipment and accessories can be found.

To-day William Read & Sons are the acknowledged leaders of New England's retail sporting goods business.

SHORTLY after the Civil War, in the building in which Eli Whitney developed interchangeable manufacturing, Governor Oliver Winchester produced the first Winchester Repeating Rifles.

These early models in their strength, accuracy and finish were examples of that New England Craftsmanship, famous everywhere as a standard of perfection.

During the World War, Winchester broadened its organization and increased its capacity to the utmost. To-day the Winchester Plant is the largest small arms and ammunition factory in the World.

Winchester has never departed from the sound principles which laid the foundation of its success and for fifty-five years Guns and Ammunition bearing the Winchester name have always been as fine as Winchester knew how to make them.

So to-day, while continuing to manufacture guns and ammunition, Winchester is entering two new fields of endeavor:

First, the manufacture of Tools, Cutlery, Flashlights and Batteries, Fishing Rods, Reels, Baits and Tackle, Skates and other new products of practical character.

Second, the marketing of these new products through retail hardware and sporting-goods stores, owned by or associated with the Winchester Company.

To-day Winchester is one of the world's leading manufacturers of sporting goods.

This affiliation will result in great economic advantages. Production and distribution costs will be diminished and the retail experience of nearly a century combined with the Winchester methods of organization will build up a retail service which has been unknown before in the merchandising of sporting goods

Robert W. Chambers' Famous Story THE STREETS OF ASCALON Illustrated by Charles Dana Gibson

A Spirited and Swiftly Moving Romance of Hearts and High Society, by the Greatest Living Master of Fiction

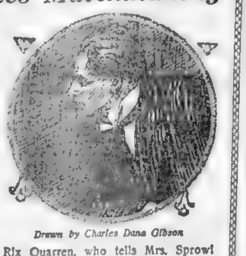
The Story of a Beautiful Girl and the Man for Whom She Made a Great Sacrifice

Mrs. Sprowl, Society Arbiter, Tries Matchmaking

Drawn by Charles Dana Gibson

Mrs. Sprowl, who wants Strelsa to marry Sir Charles Mallison.

The rich dowager, Mrs. Sprowl, is very anxious that the lovely Strelsa Leeds, having lost all her money, shall marry Sir Charles Mallison. Mrs. Sprowl's visit to Rix Quarren shows him that the irascible old lady has a heart after all, and that she loathes her millionaire nephew, Langly Sprowl, more than she admires the far richer Sir Charles. Meanwhile her efforts to lead Strelsa with sugar have failed, and she is at a loss to know what to do next.



Drawn by Charles Dana Gibson

Rix Quarren, who tells Mrs. Sprowl what he thinks of her.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED.

Dick Quarren, society idler and spendthrift, but clever and good looking, has fallen desperately in love with Strelsa Leeds. She has had one unfortunate matrimonial experience, and since her advent into New York high society has admirers by the score. Quarren meets her first at a masked ball given by Molly Wycherly, wins an hour out of her life on a wager and refrains from kissing her, as he tells her he is eager to do. She tells him there can be nothing serious between them, but she asks him to always think well of her. The Dankmere galleries are opened and Quarren takes a few days off at Witch Hollow. Strelsa tells him she is to marry Langly Sprowl. He tells her that he loves her. Strelsa relates to him the story of her marriage to Leeds. He returns to town and finds Westguard giving a lively party in the art gallery. Quarren hires a pretty stenographer. Dankmere falls in love with her. Mrs. Sprowl takes Quarren to task.

SHE stared at him, amazed, then angry, then burst into a loud laugh, but, even while laughing her fat features suddenly altered as though pain had cut mirth short.

"What is the matter?" he said.

"[illegible] . . . You are the matter. . . . I've always been fool enough to take you for a fool. You were the only one among us [illegible] I [illegible] read. God! If only some of us could see what we look like in the archives of your brain! . . .

"Let it go at that; I don't care what I look like as long as it's a friendly [illegible] and that draws my features. . . . I'm an old woman, [illegible]. . . . And it is a friendly [illegible] which [illegible] it, Ricky?"

"Yes."

"I believe it. I never knew you to do or say a deliberately unkind thing. I never knew you to abuse a confidence, either. . . . And you were the receptacle for many. Heaven only knows how many trivial, petty, miserable little intrigues you were made aware of, or how many secret kindnesses you have done. . . . Let that go, too. I want to tell you something."

She motioned him nearer; she was too stout to lean far forward; and he placed his chair beside hers.

Valuable Information

"Do you know where and when Sir Charles first saw Strelsa Leeds?"

"Yes."

"In Egypt. She was the wife of the charming and accomplished Reggie at the time."

"I know."

"Did you know that Sir Charles fell in love with her then? That he never forgot her? That when Reggie finally took his last header into the ditch he had been riding for, Sir Charles came to me in America and asked what was best to do. That on my advice he waited until I managed to draw the girl out of her retirement. That, then, on my advice, he returned to America to offer himself when the proper time arrived? Did you know these things, Rix?"

"No," he said.

"Then you know them now."

"Yes, I"— he hesitated, looking straight at her in silence. And after a while a slight color not due to the heat deepened the florid hue of her features.

"I knew Sir Charles' father," she said in a voice so modulated—a voice so unexpected and almost pretty, that he could scarcely believe it was she who had spoken.

"You said," she went on under her breath, "that in all my life friendship has never inspired in me a kindly action. You are wrong, Rix. In the matter of this marriage my only inspiration is friendship—the friendship I had for a man who is dead. . . . Sir Charles is his only son."

Quarren looked at her in silence.

A Test of Friendship.

"I was young once, Ricky. I suppose you can scarcely believe that. Life and youth began early for me—and lasted a little more than a year—and then they both burnt out in my heart—leaving the rest of me alive—this dross!"—— She [illegible] herself on her bosom, then lowered her eyes, and sat thinking for a while.

Daisy walked into the room and seated herself in a bar of sunlight, pleasantly blinking her yellow eyes. Mrs. Sprowl glanced at her absently, and they eyed each other in silence.

Then the larger of the pair drew a thick, uneasy breath, looked up at Quarren, all cunning and hardness gone from her heavy features.

"I've only been trying to do for a dead man's son what might have pleased that man were he alive," she said. "Sir Charles was a little lad when he died. But he left a letter for him to read when he was grown up. I never saw the letter, but Sir Charles has told me that, in it, his father spoke—amiably of me and said that in me his son would always find a friend. . . . That is all, Rix. Do you believe me?"

"Yes."

"Then—should I go to Witch-Hollow?"

"I can't answer you."

"Why?"

"Because—because I care for her too much. And I can do absolutely nothing for her. I could not swerve her or direct her. She alone knows what is in her heart and mind to do. I cannot alter it. She will act according to her strength; none can do otherwise. . . . And she is tired to the very soul. . . . You tell me that life and youth in you died within a year's space. I believe it. . . . But with her it took two years to die. And then it died. . . . Let her alone, in God's name!

"The child is weary of pursuit, deathly weary of importunity—tired, sad, frightened at the disaster to her fortune. Let her alone. If she marries it will be because of physical strength lacking—strength of character, of mind—perhaps moral, perhaps spiritual strength—I don't know. All I know is that no man or woman can help her, because the world has bruised her too long and she's afraid of it."

For a long while Mrs. Sprowl sat there in silence; then:

"It is strange," she mused, "that Strelsa should be afraid of Sir Charles."

"I don't think she is."

"Then why on earth won't she marry him? He is richer than Langly!"

Quarren looked at her oddly.

"But Sir Charles is her friend, you see. And so am I. . . . Friends do not make a convenience of one another."

"She could learn to love him. He is a [illegible] fellow."

"I think," said Quarren, "that she has given to him and to me all that there is in her to give to any man. And so, perhaps, she could not make the convenience of a husband out of either of us."

"What a twisted, ridiculous, morbid"——

"Let her alone," he said gently.

"Very well. . . . But I'll be hanged if I let Langly alone! He's still got me to deal with, thank God!—whatever he dares to do to Mary Ledwith—whatever he has done to that wretched creature Chester Ledwith—he's still got a perfectly vigorous aunt to reckon with. And we'll see," she added—"we'll see what can be done"——

The front door opened noisily.

"That's Dankmere," he said. "If you are not going to be civil to him hadn't you better go?"

"I'll be civil to him," she snorted, "but I'm going anyway. Good-bye, Ricky. I'll buy a picture of you when the weather's cooler. . . . How-de-do!"—as his lordship entered looking rather hot and mussy—"Hope your venture into the realms of art will prove successful, Lord Dankmere. Really, Rix, I must be going—if you'll call my man"——

Quarren Takes Her Out

"I'll take you down," he said, smilingly offering his support.

So Mrs. Sprowl rolled away in her motor, and Quarren came back, wearied with the perplexities and strain of life, to face once more the lesser problems of the immediate present; one of them was an ancient panel in the basement, and he went downstairs to solve it leaving Dankmere sorting out old prints and Jessie Vining who had just returned writing business letters on her machine.

There were not many business letters to write—one to the Metropolitan Museum people declining to present them with a charming little picture by Netscher which they wanted, but did not wish to pay for; one to the Worcester Museum advising that progressive institution that, at the request of their director, four canvases had been shipped to them for inspection, several letters enclosing photographs of pictures desired by foreign experts; and a notification to one or two local millionaires that the Dankmere Galleries never shaded prices or exchanged canvases.

Having accomplished the last of the day's work remaining up to that particular minute, Jessie Vining leaned back in her chair, rubbed her pretty eyes, glanced partly around toward Lord Dankmere, but checked herself, and with her lips the slightest shade pursed up into a hint of primness, picked up the library novel which she had been reading during intervals of leisure.

It was mainly about a British peer. The peer did not resemble Dankmere in any particular; she had already noticed that. And now, as she read on, and, naturally enough, compared the ideal peer with the real one, the difference became painfully plain to her.

Could that short young man in rather mussy Summer clothes, sorting prints over there, be a peer of the British realm? Was this young man whom she had seen turning handsprings on the grass in the [illegible] a [illegible] earl?

"I say, Miss Vining, I've gone over all these prints and I can't find one that resembles the Hogarth portrait—if it is a Hogarth."

"Mr. Quarren thinks it is."

"I daresay he's quite right, but there's nothing here to prove it;" and he slapped the huge portfolio shut, laid his hands on the table, vaulted to the top of it, and sat down. Miss Vining resumed her reading.

"Miss Vining?"

"Yes?" very leisurely.

"How old do you think I am?"

"I beg your pardon"——

"How old do you think I am?"

"Really I hadn't thought about it, Lord Dankmere."

"[illegible]"

Miss Vining resumed her reading.

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES

ROMANCE OF NEWLY WEDDED LIFE

By Ann Lisle

Copyright, 19[illegible], by King Feature Syndicate.

"MAYBE [illegible]" I [illegible], amazed at [illegible]. "Come, let's [illegible] ourselves comfortable in that cozy alcove."

As I spoke I was leading the way to the seat from which I'd twice seen the bat-eared man sneaking. I expect a demur from Dad Lee, thinking he might be self conscious about that nook, if it were, indeed, his rendezvous with his unacknowledged acquaintance. But he astonished me by skipping ahead with great agility and blocking off one [illegible] over which I noticed the window draperies were pulled untidily forward. As he dropped his overcoat against these curtains I fancied he arranged it to conceal something he expected to find there.

I determined that when we got up I'd never turn my eyes from him until he picked up his overcoat and put it on. For if there [illegible] hidden under it [illegible].

Leaned Forward

[illegible] Lee leaned forward, planting his feet firmly and laying his twisted hands upon his knees [illegible]. Then I turned [illegible].

[illegible] that I couldn't do for you [illegible] you're romping along like a two-year-old, so can get down to business. Ready for the starter's whistle? All right—go."

He turned his right hand palm up and smiled at me with an air of complete understanding. For a minute I continued to stare at his hands. Then my attention focussed on that right palm. Diagonally across it from thumb to the base of the little finger ran a thick white scar.

I looked up to find Dad Lee's eyes fixed almost challengingly on mine.

"Studyin' my beauty spot, I see. Wonderin' how I got it, too," he said in a surly tone.

"Why not?" I asked, puzzled at his resentment.

"Course a piece of flyin' wreckage couldn't do that," he muttered defiantly. "Well, as I said before, did you bring the money?"

I jerked backed to the present.

"No. I didn't bring the money," I replied. "And I'm afraid I'm not going to be able to give you any large sum."

"Not right away, you mean?" he interjected.

"Not right away or at all," I responded, watching him curiously as I spoke.

Debt of Honor

"I got to have it," he fired at me. "It's due [illegible] to a debt of honor. And we're [illegible] in for a darn-sight [illegible] seein' as how it's of long standin' and people that sees my daughter riding around in [illegible] expects me to [illegible] her [illegible]."

"That [illegible] was loaned to the [illegible] by a dear friend of [illegible] as I've told you before," I [illegible]. "And if your friends [illegible] to draw any false inferences about your [illegible] I hope you won't get [illegible] through any [illegible] advised desire to impress [illegible]."

"Fine words butter no parsnips," he whimpered, getting off the incongruous old saying with no idea of how absurd it sounded coming from him. "I gotta have the money."

"You'll not get it from me," I interrupted quietly. "I'm compelled to be brutally frank with you. I see now you came here expecting to find my husband in affluent circumstances and to profit by them. But here's the plain truth about it. We have no money. We had [illegible] but it's gone."

He leaned forward ingratiatingly and put his hand on my arm.

"You had once—and you'll have it again," he said wheedlingly. "And don't you think your old dad's going to make it hard for you while you're in a bad way."

"I'd give it to you if I had it," my sense of pity compelled me to add. "But, for the present, can you manage if I pay your hotel bills?"

He blinked his eyes fast and seemed to be trying to decide on something. Then he wrinkled up his sharp little face into a smile.

"I'll make out," said Dad Lee. "And if you could do with a piece of change, I ain't saying I couldn't lend it to you."

He fumbled in his pocket and pulled out two worn and crimpled dollar bills.

PROPER HATS FOR FALL

By Rita Stuyvesant

AUGUST is the month when we [illegible] of Fall millinery [illegible] in the shops are [illegible] to wear when the first cool days arrive.

Satin hats are in demand to accompany the [illegible] Canton crepe frocks and also there is a request for models becoming to bobbed hair. For instance, one shop is showing a clever hat of soft black satin with a deep crown that fits the [illegible] and a narrow brim [illegible] off the face. [illegible] finishes the edges of the hat and a loop of black grosgrain [illegible] the right side of the brim.

This type hat is extremely becoming to bobbed hair and not only comes in black but white and gray as well. One could easily wear this hat with a [illegible] frock [illegible] as attractive with a crepe frock.

Duvetyn is again favored for early Fall millinery [illegible] stunning hats of the most [illegible] colors. Raspberry [illegible] a bright note to a dark [illegible]. Soft pull-on shapes that adjust themselves rakishly are the best liked and there [illegible] mode is finding favor. Tassels lend an Eastern note to [illegible] duvetyn hats, and [illegible] embroidery in harmonizing shades makes attractive trimming.

Satin hats with drapery of real lace are notable among the dressy hats for Fall wear, and are shown especially in black, brown and navy. The lace partially veils the eyes.

What Baby Said

One dollar will be paid for each letter printed

One day while her mother was cleaning house little two-year-old Mary found a package of her father's razor blades. She went behind a door to investigate and soon came out from there with her fingers dripping with blood. Running to her mother, she cried, "Mama, see, the red's all running out!"

Lo, the beauty of Adonis, the curls of Hyperion, the grace of a Russian dancer, the muscles of Dempsey, the charm of Leo Deitrichstein, and the s[illegible] of Douglas Fairbanks, all these are his.

Yet he is untouched by vanity, and conceit is not IN him.

More brilliant than Bernard Shaw's is his wit—yet he never attempteth to be "funny."

More perfect than Solomon's is his judgment—yet never doth he offer "advice"; and "I told you so" is not in his vocabulary.

Smoother than a satin sleeve is his tongue and more glittering than an Anthony Hope hero's his gift of repartee—yet doth he babble mainly in baby talk and sweet nothings, and never doth he "answer back."

He is ALWAYS clean shaven—yet never doth he monopolize the mirror.

To his wife he shall be a constant and devoted companion—yet never shall he bore her, neither shall he hang about the house mornings.

He is clever enough to make much moneys—yet foolish enough to fling it away upon a woman's whims.

In Wall Street he is a wizard, and in the market place a shining light—yet never is he too "busy" to delight in afternoon teas, nor too weary after his day's labors to fox trot until morning.

As a tailor's advertisement and a haberdasher's model is he always arrayed—yet he taketh no thought for his raiment, neither is he conscious of his collars.

Among women he is worshiped and adored—yet never doth he glance at a woman; and his middle name is "Unconsciousness."

He is clothed with pride, and dignity sitteth upon his brow—yet doth he de[illegible] to be [illegible] and to have his hair rumpled.

Verily, verily, he is a Paragon OF paragons—simple and subtle, practical and poetic, serious and amusing, frank and mysterious, saintly and human, and altogether PERFECT!

Yet be of good cheer, my Son, for no damsel shall find the Perfect Lover of her dreams!

And it shall come to pass that one day a damsel shall look upon THEE and endow thee in her heart with all these gifts of her imagination.

And, falling down before thee, she shall exclaim in her blindness: "Behold, it is HE—even mine Ideal!"

And the gossips shall whisper, "Good heavens! What did she see in HIM?"

And thy rivals shall mutter, "Lucky dub!"

Yet, if thou art wise and subtle, peradventure, all the days of her life, she shall never awaken from her trance.

And thou shalt dwell upon a pedestal and wear a shining halo forever!

And thy "virtues" shall be recounted to the matrons at violet teas; and among the buds thou shalt be known as "Ideal Husband."

Selah.

MINERALS IN FOODS

By Loretto C. Lynch

OF late, I have been interested in the statement made by some doctor that among the minerals needed by the human are magnesium, calcium, potassium, iron and phosphorous. I have always lived on very simple foods and I have wondered if the foods I [illegible] eating contained these [illegible] suggested as inducive to [illegible]."

The above quotation is part of a letter that came to me recently. There are a number of folks a bit hazy about minerals in the diet. And it seems, according to the physicians, that we need all these [illegible].

[illegible] containing 0.165 per cent or more of [illegible] we might mention almonds, cauliflower, [illegible], cottage cheese, dried beans, dried cowpeas, dried figs, egg yolk, cow's milk, olives, rye bran and watercress.

Potassium is found in certain foods that every woman planning a menu should consider. There is 1.0 per cent or more potassium found in cocoa, dried beans, dried lima beans, dried figs, dried peas, dried prunes and raisins.

Phosphorus, 0.3 per cent or more, is found in hard cheese, cocoa, chocolate, dried beans, dried peas, egg yolk, entire wheat, peanuts, wheat bran.

We hear much about the necessity for a general mixed diet. In order to get our share of the several minerals needed most by the body we should avoid the meat and potato and white bread rut.

Quotation

One dollar will be paid for each favorite quotation printed.

ADVICE TO LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A Case for Common Sense

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I was going about with a young man who said he loved me but I doubted and a quarrel arose when he asked me to marry him and I refused. As I am only nineteen, I thought that too young to settle down. He said he would not come to see me any more. I felt hurt at first, but shortly after another young man asked me to go out with him. I met my former sweetheart and he was very angry. He called and said I was making a fool of him by going around with another man. He asked me to give him up and go back to him. Now, as I love him more than I do the second, I am at a loss what to do.

ANXIOUS.

WHY do you waste a sheet of perfectly good typewriting and a 2-cent stamp to convey to me a question you can't help answering if you apply one fraction of the ability you show in handling a typewriting machine? If you love the first man, why try to hold to a promise you should never have given and cannot satisfactorily fulfill?

A Chance for Grit

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I met a man in business a year ago and fell in love with him. He has never done anything to give me reason to think that he cares. He praised me for things that I had done, and said that I certainly had grit, but that was all.

I have tried to forget him, but cannot.

He is rather "well-to-do," but this is not the reason why I care for him.

I should see him about business matters, but hate to see him, after hearing that he is engaged. Also, I do not want him to know that I care, especially if that is true.

M. R.

HAVE you ever read the old verse: "He either fears his fate too much, Or his deserts are small, Who dare not put it to the touch To win or lose it all?" This applies to you. Instead of agonizing, why don't you make it a point to see this man, since you say you really should do so, if for business reasons alone? Then — since your business relations [illegible] a friendly [illegible], why not ask him if there's any truth in the rumor concerning his happiness? If he is engaged, you must call on your grit and stop romancing about him. If he isn't, there's value for you in introducing the topic. Men often take an impersonal attitude toward women they meet in business, because it's more practical as well as more chivalrous to do so. But you may be able to suggest to this man that you are a woman and, therefore to be wooed.

Stocks Weak in New York; Call Money Opens at 6%; Demand Sterling Steady

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. Forbes

I used to think that the stock exchange was the most criticized and the most condemned institution in America. I have lately discovered, however, that the rank and file of the people harbor intense ill will against the banks, particularly the banks in the larger cities. The revelation has been disconcerting, for it is not pleasant to know that institutions so essential to the maintenance of civilization as at present constituted are distrusted and detested by such a large percentage of the population.

* * *

As examples of criticisms constantly received read these two extracts from letters hot from the mail:

"Here is a sample of how the banks trim their customers. I have been a depositor in a certain big national bank for over twenty-five years. The other day I went to borrow $10,000, putting up ample securities. They did not give me the $10,000, only $9,844.67. In other words, they deducted $155.33 for the three months' interest in advance. I claim this is decidedly wrong. They should give me the $10,000 in full, and at the end of three months charge me the interest. You see, by their scheme they have the use of $155.33 for three months. This, it seems to me, ought to be called highway robbery or something harsher.

"I am glad to say that I believe all banks do not do this. It is plain usury, to my mind."

* * *

From a town in Pennsylvania comes a very long indictment of banks, criticising many practices, including this:

"They pay their depositors from 2 to 3 per cent. per year for undisturbed saving accounts, and this must not be touched for the full period of six months for that semester, for if you even draw it out one day before the six months is up, you get no interest. They buy the use of, say, a million or more of deposits at 2 or 3 per cent., and then loan this out at 6 per cent., which is a profit of from 200 per cent. to 100 per cent. The wonder is that they do not pay bigger dividends. Their dividends should be at least 80 or 90 per cent. if they did not have such fearful useless expenses. Then the so-called national banks draw interest from Uncle Sam on their deposited bonds, while the United States prints them CURRENCY to use in their business, which he will not do for private individuals. Just try to deposit your BONDS WITH UNCLE SAM SO THAT HE WILL CONTINUE TO PAY YOU 4 to 5 per cent. interest on them, and see if he will give you money to use for lending out and print it for you, too, free of charge."

* * *

Good will is accounted a valuable asset in business. Woolworth appraised the good will of his business at $50,000,000, and so set it down in his balance sheet. Ill will is a bad asset. In many cases it can bring, and has brought disaster to concerns. At this time the public's hostility, for instance, against anthracite coal magnates, is so ugly that the whole industry is, to my mind, threatened with reprisals that will not be palatable to those guilty of having stirred up this ill will.

* * *

I do not believe that a great majority of our bankers have the slightest idea as to how they and their institutions are regarded by millions of citizens. The situation calls for corrective action.

First, there must be prompt abolition of any and every practice which can be legitimately construed as unfair.

Second, bankers all over the country should bestir themselves to break down the ignorance and hostility which are so widely prevalent. This can be accomplished only by painstaking intelligence, persistent, educational effort.

* * *

That many banks, alike in cities, towns and rural communities, have aggravated the industrial and agricultural prostration of the last twelve months by acting shortsightedly, selfishly and inconsiderately cannot be questioned for a moment. The hoggishness of many banks has been a daily theme of discussion all over the land. Criticisms have not emanated only from the ignorant. The better class of bankers have themselves voiced—although usually privately—condemnation of the tactics pursued in many directions.

* * *

The president of the National City Bank of Tampa, Florida, Charles A. Faircloth, for example, writes:

"We have just had opportunity to read your 'warning to the bankers of America' and we wish to congratulate you on it.

"There is no question but that we will not see normal times returned to American industry until bankers of America, working as a whole, put their entire efforts back of our enterprises in a whole hearted manner.

"More power to you."

* * *

Happily the reductions already made in money rates indicate that the bankers are at least being aroused to a sense of their responsibility. There remains much for them to do, however.

Bank Failures Increased

National bank failures increased during the June fiscal year, amounting to twenty-eight for that period. This is the largest number for twenty-four years. In 1897 such failures totaled thirty-eight. The average failure last year was but one to 300 banks, however. Bankers made money last year, average net earnings reaching the record high of 23.09 per cent. on the capital of all national banks.

OILS LED IN A DOWNWARD MOVEMENT

Steels, Motors and Rails in a Recessional; High Money Promotes Selling

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor.

Stocks were weak in New York at noon and although losses were not large as a rule they represented the movement of about all active issues. Oils led the morning decline. It was steady.

At the end of the morning prices were but little above the lowest. Trading was active in the first hour, when transactions totalled 176,000 shares. The sale of stock was promoted by high money. Call loans renewed at 6 per cent. Foreign exchange was steady, demand sterling being unchanged at $3.55⅝.

OFF AT THE OPENING.

The downward movement of yesterday was continued at the opening today, the market being depressed by the selling orders which accumulated overnight. Demand for stocks in the loan market after the close on Thursday was small. Rails led the decline at the start and after they became steady oils were made the main objective. Invincible was the weakest petroleum, receding more than three points within a few minutes and selling at its lowest since listed on the New York Stock Exchange. Doheny oils sagged about two points. Houston dropped almost as much as Invincible. Steels and motors eased off and equipments and tobaccos were lower from the beginning. Sugars were irregular. Little was done in coppers, but they were heavy. Leathers had a good tone. At the end of an hour prices were below the initial level.

MONEY RATE TOO HIGH.

The call rate has been too high this week to give bulls any encouragement. Withdrawals of Western funds from New York and buying of government certificates of indebtedness have been sufficient to reduce the amount available for the stock market. A week ago the call money surplus amounted to millions and there was no expectation of any immediate scarcity.

The reserve ratio of the New York Federal Reserve Bank declined in a week from 72.2 to 69.2. For the system at large there was improvement, the ratio rising from 63.4 to 63.7. Boston showed to the most advantage, advancing from 77.8 to 79.2, the highest rate shown by any of the twelve Federal Reserve Banks. According to trade reports the buyers' strike is a thing of the past and retail business is improving. But for wage reductions and scarcity of employment, it is reasonable to believe that stocks of surplus merchandise would be quickly exhausted. This would give industries great impetus. But merchants are slow in placing orders. Their experience in regard to sales and credits within a year has inspired caution.

More Building in West

There is more building construction in the West, according to general report. In Chicago in July building permits totaled 794, against 675 in June and 253 a year ago, with total valuation of $44,000,000, or nearly double the previous month and more than double a year ago. The total includes 534 residences and apartment buildings against 553 the previous month and 160 a year ago. Five thousand permits for residences and apartments have been issued in Chicago this year.

Bond Sales Increase

The Daily Bond Buyer reports that State and municipal bond sales for July totaled $94,021,550, against $79,914,826 in the corresponding 1920 month, while sales for seven months aggregated $599,775,360, compared with $425,896,817 for corresponding period of 1920.

More Demand for Leather

Chicago tanners report more demand for leather and are optimistic because of receipts of regular orders for moderate amounts. The trade prediction is that low grade leathers will soon advance in price.

Railroad Items

The New York Central is authorized to issue $4,425,000 4 per cent. bonds in exchange for a like amount of New York Central & Hudson River Railroad 3½ per cent. Lake Shore collateral bonds.

Revenue loadings by the St. Paul road last week totaled 29,481 cars, against 36,630 year ago. Loadings for the year to date are 792,879, against 1,003,022 year ago.

Car repair orders which may be placed soon are figured at New York Central 7,000 cars, Lehigh Valley 5,000 and Delaware, Lackawanna & Western 1,500.

The American Railway Association reports for the July 23 week a gain over the preceding week of 14,096 cars in revenue freight loadings. The total was 790,348 cars, a decrease of 138,070 from corresponding week last year, and a decrease of 119,354 from corresponding week in 1919.

The government has settled for $800,000 with the Gulf Coast Line for Federal control obligations.

Holders of 95 per cent. of Chicago, Terre Haute & Southeastern income bonds and 92 per cent. of the stock have approved of the proposed lease to the St. Paul road.

Wall Street Briefs

Capital shares of no par value of H. F. Holbrook, Inc., have been approved for listing on the New York Curb Exchange.

For the July 30 week the American Petroleum Institute estimates daily average gross crude oil production in United States at 1,314,240 bbls. against 1,307,360 for preceding week.

The August 1 wage cut by the American Railway Express Co. averaged 15 per cent. and will save it $15,000,000 per annum.

A gold shipment from England to New York being brought by the steamship Olympic approximates $2,005,000 in value.

American Hide and Leather plants in the southwest which three months ago were operating only 20 per cent. or 30 per cent. of capacity, are now running with double shifts in effort to keep up with orders.

For the first six months of 1921 the Long Island Railroad reports gross earnings of $12,767,134; operating expenses of $12,099,211; taxes, etc., of $928,153; an operating deficit of $270,230, and deficit after charges of $1,685,129.

City Loans

Cambridge, Mass., has sold to Blake Brothers at 5.38 per cent. discount plus $2.50 premium a temporary loan of $300,000, dated August 8, and maturing November 8, 1921.

Manchester, N. H., will receive proposals until 2 p. m., August 9, for discount of a temporary loan of $400,000 dated August 9, and maturing March 9, 1922.

Consuming More Gasoline

This country consumed more gasoline and fuel oil in the first five months of 1921 than during the like period of last year. The depression in the oil industry is blamed upon decreased exports.

HOW ONE FIRM WEATHERED BAD TIMES

Spillane Tells of Interesting Talk With Head of Leading Auto Company

By RICHARD SPILLANE.

Philadelphia, Aug. 5.—David S. Ludlum president of the Auto Car Company, says his plant employes are getting their one week vacation with pay this year as usual. He has 1,150 persons in his establishment at Ardmore, Pa., and slightly more than that number in his 39 branch sales and service stations throughout America.

"The last twelve or sixteen months have been wonderful," he said. "We haven't made any money, but we have had a most valuable experience, and we have done a remarkable business all things considered. In the calendar year of 1919 our volume of business was $9,000,000. That was the biggest up to that time. In 1920 we did about eleven millions. This year we will do close to ten millions. It has cost like the deuce to do business this last twelve months, but it has been worth it. We have improved our facilities and our organization, increased our efficiency and we know ourselves.

GOT BUSY EARLY.

"When early last year we saw what was coming we got busy. It was no time to sit around and mope. It was a time to work. We made a complete study of our production department, our sales organization and our accounting department. Then we determined the last thing we should do was to cut wages or lay off workmen. Our plant is in a small town—Ardmore. If we closed down, it would affect the whole community, for ours is practically the one considerable industrial establishment of the town. It would mean prostration.

"We therefore had to keep up the purchasing power of our employes whether the officers took a reduction or not. We knew it was going to be harder to get business and it could be obtained only by reaching further for it and that we had to have the most earnest co-operation all along the line.

CAME THROUGH INTACT.

"We appreciated if we shut down we would have the tremendous cost of breaking up our producing organization which in turn would have cut our sales organization all to pieces. Then you know there are carrying charges in a shutdown and these have to be paid out of cash, capital or surplus.

"We have come through with our organization intact. That means it has not cost as much in dollars and cents as if we had shut down. To have broken up our organization by a shutdown would have cost a million and a half, to say nothing of loss of time. Why, if we had closed, we practically would be unable to do anything of volume production until next Spring. We did not cancel an order for material or defer a delivery.

"The humane side of this matter of a shutdown was considered just as well as the financial.

HOW IT WAS DONE.

"But we trimmed sails. We cut dividends from 10 per cent. a year to 6. We curtailed our force somewhat. We had 1,300 in the plant. Now we have 1,150. We didn't retrench. We entrenched. We didn't stop advertising. No, siree. We kept right at it. We dropped out of some mediums that hoisted sales on us, but in the others we were consistent and persistent in our advertising.

"We didn't depart from our housing program. We built seven double houses in the Fall of 1920. That means 14 families. We would have built more, but owing to the departure of people there were sufficient quarters to accommodate the needs of our people. We will resume building when necessary.

"We run full time all through the depression except about eight weeks and then we eliminated the half-day Saturday.

"Our production in the last quarter corresponds with that of the same quarter in 1920 and is ahead of that of 1919.

WORKERS OWN STOCK.

"One reason why we have such success with our men, I believe, is that more than 600 of the workers in our plant are stockholders in our company.

"What do I think of the outlook? I'm a bull. But I think we must stop lallygagging and waiting for something to drop out of the sky to help us. We ought to do more ourselves and give less time to talking and waiting to see what Washington is going to do. Our little organization is determined to land business, so we get after it and don't wait for it to come to us.

"Get co-operation throughout the organization. That's the big thing in industry. We are planning today where we want to be and intend to be a year from now.

"Sentiment is improving. The country is on the upgrade."

Mr. Ludlum has one feature in his establishment that is unique. Of course, as in many industrial plants, there is a medical department, an oculist and a dentist. But at regular intervals a lawyer visits the plant and the employes may consult him. A person worrying over a title to his property or some real or fancied trouble can get the best of advice and direction free of charge.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Dullness ruled in the stock market throughout most of the session and while the rails participated in an upward spurt during the forenoon, they developed heaviness along with the industrials before the close. The rise in call money to 6 per cent., after renewing at 5½, may have had something to do with the reactionary tendency. Strength was confined to isolated specialties, chief among which were California Packing, Atlantic Gulf, Studebaker and Chandler. Renewed weakness developed in the Pierce-Arrow issues and Industrial Alcohol and American Sugar were under pressure. The latter rallied two points from its low of the day, however, thus establishing a fractional net gain. Considerable activity developed in Vivadou, Inc., as a result of the favorable settlement on its current operations which show a greatly improved cash position and reduction in outstanding indebtedness.

EFFORTS have been made to trace the source of the buying which has given such a firm appearance to American Locomotive lately, but although purchases of 50,000 shares or more have been traced to two well-known firms, it has been impossible to obtain any line on the identity of the interests that have been accumulating the stock. The company is said to be doing a great deal of repair work for the railroads, and it is known that the shop executives and foremen were ordered to complete their vacations before the first of August on account of the orders which it was expected would be on hand by that time. The strong financial position of the company as well as its industrial prospects has made it the real favorite of the equipment companies.

THE easier position of the New York banks is disclosed by the announcement that New York subscribed $724,636,000 to the last two issues of certificates of indebtedness from the Treasury Department. The Secretary of the Treasury allotted only $376,362,000, and the New York participation was cut down to a little more than $146,000,000. The country's subscriptions amounted to more than $1,030,000,000, and was construed as indicating the volume of money seeking short time liquid investment at present.

THE American Sugar Refining Company has advanced the price of refined sugar to 6.15 cents. The raw sugar market is firm at practically unchanged prices, with Great Britain a large buyer of Cuban sugars. The report that Germany is asking for a price on 1,000,000 tons of Cuban sugar is not yet taken very seriously in the trade.

ATLANTIC GULF showed considerable activity and strength in the second hour, with short covering based on rumors that the annual report to be published Monday will not be as bad as expected. According to the Street forecast, the earnings on the common stock may be negligible but it is stated that bank loans maturing in the next three months are not likely to be in excess of $1,500,000.

THE annual report of Missouri, Kansas and Texas for 1920 shows net corporate deficit after taxes and charges of $2,509,099. This compares with net income of $207,236, equivalent to $1.59 a share earned on the outstanding $13,000,000 of preferred stock in 1919.

FURTHER declines are reported in the price of copper, with sales reported at 11⅞ cents per pound in the outside market. It is stated that some producers would be willing to sell August and September deliveries at 11 cents with a large order in hand. It is explained, however, that this decline is more apparent than real, as the copper situation has been helped by reductions in ocean freight rates, which are now $5.50 a long ton to Hamburg, compared with the old rate of $9. The new rates to Antwerp, Rotterdam and Havre are $5, compared with the former rate of $8. These reductions amount to about ¼ cent per pound.

Corporation Reports

June gross earnings by the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. were $3,227,064, an increase of $473,073 over the same month last year, and the surplus after interest, depreciation and dividends, was $129,202. This was $187,540 larger than in June, 1920. Surplus available for dividends in the six months was $2,516,877, an increase of nearly $600,000.

For the June quarter the Air Reduction Co., Inc., reports gross income of $1,337,784, operating expenses of $898,195, making operating income $439,588. Reserves for depreciation were $219,530, bond interest and discount $35,743 and net profits earned on outstanding stock before Federal taxes was $184,314.

International Mercantile Marine Co.'s surplus at the close of 1920 was $7,435,802, equal to $14.37 a share earned on $51,725,500 preferred stock, compared with $25.45 earned in 1919, $18.63 in 1918 and $22.72 in 1917.

The Empire Gas & Fuel reports for the twelve months ended with May, gross of $64,399,916; operating expenses $46,209,431; net $18,190,185, and balance of $15,897,823.

WISE BUYERS WILL WIN, SAYS EVANS

Points Out Little Tendencies in Stock Market That Show Recuperative Signs

By C. B. EVANS.

Chicago, Aug. 5. — Several well-known brokerage houses in New York wired to Chicago correspondents Thursday morning predictions that the market would go down. Accordingly it went up.

They might better have told us a year or two ago what was going to happen. In support of their predictions they recited facts that have been distributed to the public over and over again. But the specific, some small technical condition, instead of the aggregate is the thing on which too many of us predicate our business expectations. It is the aggregate that has ailed us the past year and a half and will ail us for a long time to come in spite of the moderate recoveries here and there and a gratifying progress toward normal conditions.

MAKE WISE SELECTIONS.

So far as securities are concerned one must say that the buyer who makes reasonably wise selections and pays up in full can hardly help doing well. The half-point or a point or even ten points, of today or next week matters little.

People who do their figuring on the aggregate of the evidence and the balance on the one side or the other of the question of an investment have been buying stocks in this city for some time past. One case may be cited in which the investor put in many thousand dollars in five and ten-share lots of various stocks. This purchaser was not afraid of the continuation of the passing of dividends. We all know that many more will be passed, but also we know substantially the conditions of the properties before the action will be taken.

There is enough evidence now of what is going to happen to make possible a fairly safe prognostication. It is certain that liquidation will continue for quite long periods, but with moderate uplift from time to time, but altogether probable that in the main, securities have reached their lowest points.

TRAIN OF CHANGES.

The small bulge that already has occurred in them is only an incident in the train of changes that the next two or three years will bring. And the smaller the output of pig-iron becomes and the more rapidly the prices of steel decline, the better so far as concerns the liquidation and the patience of those who are waiting for the good turn.

In this part of the country the promise of crops is imparting strength to the situation. The wheat is turning out fairly well and the probabilities are that corn will have the huge yield of 3,200,000,000 bushels. At the buying end conditions show improvement.

It is not a small matter that the American Woolen Company is sold up in dress goods to the Spring of 1922, or that many other fabrics are in increased demand, the West being especially conspicuous in the buying. Each commodity as it reaches strong standing ground is a rallying element and the help to the other commodities and tends to prevent demoralization that would naturally be caused by declines in those articles which have not yet liquidated sufficiently.

THE GERMAN MENACE.

The decreased amount of our exports, the reported activity of foreign countries in competition with us and the discussion of the tariff question have caused a good deal of painful thought among those who are handling commodities having a world market.

Curtailment in our output will certainly be caused by foreign competition, and prices will suffer. But we cannot doubt our ability to give a good account of ourselves in the long run, nor that we shall go back to the position we formerly held in the exportation of manufactured goods. Year after year previous to the war we were gaining in that class of exports and our ambition was strong.

Germany is going to interrupt the game and have the advantage of low wages, but Germans are not so different from other human beings that they are going to work very long for much less than is paid others and decade after decade we have prospered in the foreign commerce with wages far below ours. If a European works for half as much as an American and achieves only half as much result, he is not a particularly dangerous fellow. Moreover we shall be doing business on a gold basis as against the false money on which commerce is now conducted in the old world.

Copper Sells Lower

Copper was sold yesterday in considerable quantity at 11⅞ cents a pound delivered. Consumers have been withholding orders in the expectation of getting metal below 12 cents a pound and desire to reduce the surplus has induced producers to come to their terms. July sales are said to have aggregated 75,000,000 pounds. This is 35,000,000 pounds in excess of the amount which the trade hoped to find a market for last month. Europe is taking more American copper. Leading overseas countries are buying here at the rate of 586,264,000 pounds per annum. This is about 40 per cent. of the pre-war European demand. Germany is the principal foreign consumer.

Rail Earnings

For 1920 the Missouri, Kansas & Texas reports net corporate deficit after taxes and charges $2,509,099, against net income of $207,236 in 1919.

Canadian Pacific's gross decreased $537,000 in the fourth week of July while the decrease from January 1 was $9,904,000.

Missouri, Kansas and Texas reports for its system $660,350 decrease in June gross, but net of $511,720 against a deficit of $1,451,552 for June last year. In six months its gross decreased $2,715,074, but it reports net of $2,664,976 against a deficit of $3,474,027 for the first half of last year.

LOCAL ISSUES DOWN AS A RULE

Market Dull and Narrow; Boston & Montana Sustains Large Loss on Curb

The Boston market showed no alteration at the opening, being weak, dull and narrow. It retained all these characteristics during the forenoon. A large percentage of the issues dealt in sold at yesterday's closing prices. Transactions were chiefly in odd lots. Stocks to recede the most were American Sugar, off 1¼ at its morning lowest; West End and Loew's Theatres, down a point each, and Mexican Investment, which receded 2½. The only early gains were fractional. Packing issues, rails and coppers were heavy.

Small gains were made by American Woolen common, Eastern Steamship, North Butte and Waltham Watch preferred. Among issues to show fractional losses were American Telephone, Isle Royale, New Cornelia, Island Creek, New Haven, Ventura, United Drug common, National Leather, Greenfield Tap, Waldorf, Swift & Co. and Libby.

CURB PRICES LOWER.

Trading on the Curb was exceedingly quiet and this market had a depressed tone. Boston & Montana, Crystal and Mutual were the only issues in which much was done. At the end of an hour Boston & Montana was off 12 cents at 5 cents, Mutual 3 cents at 25 cents, Hecla Divide 1 cent at 5 cents and United Verde Extension ½ cent at 22½. Crystal was up a cent at 3 cents. Eureka had recovered a two-cent loss.

BOSTON FINANCIAL NOTES.

The tax rate in Lancaster, Mass., this year is the highest on record for that town, being $30. Last year's rate was $22.

The Beacon Oil Co. received during the first seven months of this year 2,368,251 barrels of crude oil, as compared with 2,464,853 barrels during the six months from July to December inclusive of last year, or a total of 4,833,104 barrels since the refinery started operations in July, 1920.

Newburyport has increased its tax rate $4 to $29.

Articles of organization as Massachusetts corporations have been filed by the Commonwealth Wholesale Drug Co., Boston, capital $100,000; Inventions Manufacturing Co., Inc., Boston, $100,000; Boardman Manufacturing Co., Boston, 1,000 shares common, no par; Richdale Oil Corporation, Boston, $100,000.

HEAVY CLOSING ON GENERAL LIST

By BROADAN WALL.

(Registered, U. S. Patent Office.)

New York, Aug. 5.—A rumor that a certain banker who overstayed his market in securities is now in an embarrassing position helped the reactionary tendency in the stock market Thursday.

With the exception of about five issues, in which there is a large short interest, the general list closed heavy with net losses of about a point. Early in the day the railroad department and most of the industrials were heavy. Toward the end of the forenoon a strong undertone developed but the higher range of quotations was used to dispose of additional shares. The tone was distinctly heavy in the last hour, final prices being the lowest.

For a short time early in the day, a small demonstration was staged against the shorts in Chandler Motor and Studebaker which caused a rise of about two points each in those issues. The advances, however, were lost in the late afternoon when the balance of the list became heavy.

Call money, after renewing at 5½ per cent., advanced to 6 per cent., which is the highest since July 20. The rise in call money this week is attributed to large withdrawals by industrial companies which have been purchasing United States certificates of indebtedness.

Those large banking instutions which have in the past stepped forward whenever call money was tight are once more supplying funds to prevent any wild upward rush in the rate. A favorable development was the lending of some time money at 5¾ per cent. The going rate for time funds is 6 per cent.

READ CAREFULLY SONG TITLE TEST RULES

Following Regulations Govern All Points In Great $6,000 Trial of Skill

The Boston American Songs of the World Title Test is a test of skill and judgment open to all readers of the Boston American, irrespective of age, living in any city or town in New England or Canada.

Two hundred and twenty cash awards will be given by this newspaper to its readers who submit the largest percentage of correct titles to the sixty pictures to be published one each day consecutively (Sundays excepted) in the Boston American.

All employes of the Boston American and their families are absolutely barred from participating in the awards.

The test will consist of 60 pictures, each representing the title of a well-known song, to be printed one each day in the Boston American; the first picture on Wednesday, June 8, 1921.

Participation in any other contest which has been run, which is now running or which may be run by the Boston American will not debar anyone from entering this test.

Every participant or any or all members of a family will be allowed to submit one set of pictures, but each set must contain only ONE TITLE to each picture, and no participant shall be entitled to more than one award and not more than one award shall be given in any one family.

Each and every title must be neatly written or printed on the coupon furnished by the Boston American; or on a page of some book form by itself. Accompanied either by the picture furnished by the Boston American, or a pen or pencil copy thereof, and must have the name, residence, etc., of the participant on each title blank.

Do not send your title in "list" form, i. e., do not write titles under one another on a piece of paper.

In case there are not complete sets of correct titles, awards will be given to the person submitting the nearest correct solutions, giving weight to skill and judgment.

In case of a tie awards will be made on the basis of neatness, judgment and accuracy, but if the tie cannot be decided in that way the tied participants will receive similar awards.

Under no circumstances should participants send in their titles before the end of the Test, as any sent in before the last picture is printed will not be considered. KEEP your titles from day to day and at the end of the Test arrange them in numerical order and then send them in all together at one time.

Time will not be a factor in making the awards. The first titles sent in after the Test closes will stand no better than the last submitted.

All titles must be delivered to the Boston American title headquarters, at No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass., either by mail or in person within the specified time limit which will be announced later.

All envelopes or packages containing titles must be legibly addressed as follows: "Song Title Editor, No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass., P. O. Box 239," and each envelope or package must bear the name and address of the sender legibly written or stamped on the upper left-hand corner.

As all pictures in the Test will contain written or printed matter, if mailed, it is absolutely necessary that the packages be fully prepaid at postal letter rates, as mail of this character goes to the postoffice as first-class matter. The Boston American reserves the right to refuse to consider any sets of titles on which charges for postal delivery are not fully prepaid.

There will be no title or answer book to buy. Lists of Song Titles will be printed in the Boston American. The list appearing will contain among others the correct titles.

Participants who desire further information should address their inquiries to the Song Title Editor, No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass. Questions will be answered as far as possible through the columns of the Boston American. If participants desire personal replies, they should enclose sufficient postage for such a reply, or they may phone Main 3190 or call in person.

The Boston American reserves the right to make any change in or addition to these conditions that it may deem necessary for fairly and properly conducting the Test, and the decision of the Boston American Song Title Editor on any question which may arise will be absolutely final, and the entry of a participant is a complete acceptance of all conditions and regulations now made or to be made.

NEW TRAFFIC RULES URGED IN LAWRENCE

Haverhill, Aug. 5.—Deputy Marshal Hiram O. Pearson has prepared a set of traffic regulations and submitted them to Commissioner of Public Safety Albert L. Bartlett for approval. They will probably go to the Municipal Council for similar action. The deputy, in addition to recommending uniform signals by traffic cops, restricts "jay walking," urges a school of instruction for children in the public schools similar to the New Bedford school, and in dealing with the autoists says the spooner must pay attention to his machine instead of the girl beside him.

LEOPOLD MORSE WORKERS HOLD FIELD DAY

700 Employes and Their Guests Enjoy Sports at Norumbega Park

The third annual outing of the employes of the Leopold Morse Company was held Wednesday at Norumbega Park. About 700 employes and their guests arrived at the park in ten special cars.

A ball game on the athletic field was the first event on the program made up by the outing committee, headed by William Purcell. The "Old Timers," composed of men over thirty-five years of age, and the "Ancients," composed of men who have been with the firm for more than twenty years clashed in a game filled with hitting and wild base running. The game was a tie, 10 to 10. Leon Strauss, treasurer of the firm, captained the "Old Timers," and J. C. Morse, vice-president of the firm, captained the "Ancients."

Joseph Ward, an employe in the wholesale department, got the first leg on the Goulston Cup, a handsome mug given by Ernest Goulston of the Goulston Advertising Agency. The cup must be won three times by one man before he can keep it permanently. Ward will have the cup for a year.

The Brookline town team came to the park and played six innings of fast ball with the firm's nine. The town team won, 6 to 1.

There was a real live "jazz" band on hand all afternoon and evening, and after the program of sporting events, the dancing pavilion near the field was opened. Several hundred of the employes remained in the park for the evening performance in the theatre.

A Magazine for Policemen BY Policemen

Chicago Produces It. Other Cities Might Imitate It

Copyright 1921 Star Company

Charles C. Fitzmorris, young and able superintendent of police in Chicago, publishes a policeman's magazine called Main 13, which is the police telephone number, a title well chosen.

There have been published many police periodicals of various sorts in different cities. Police superintendents and Mayors of cities outside of Chicago are advised to give a few moments' attention to Main 13, which is published by and for the Chicago police force to increase and maintain solidarity, ambition and enthusiasm in the rank and file of the police force.

The first page of Main 13 is devoted to simple diagrams showing that in Chicago CRIME IS ON THE DECREASE. The Chicago policeman's magazine boasts that Chicago is the only big city that can truthfully say this.

Next to the statistics demonstrating police efficiency comes a message addressed to the police force by William Hale Thompson, the Mayor of Chicago, and ex-officio head of the police department.

The Mayor's article encourages the policemen, promises to see that they are paid well, and better paid as rapidly as possible.

The Mayor praises good work done by the police, tells the police that they must sometimes be reconciled to criticism. Briefly, the Mayor tells why it is that sometimes the police are disliked, while firemen are admired.

"When somebody pulls a fire box the department responds to save life and property; when they pull a police box the police come to put people in jail. Of course, the firemen can make more friends, the policemen can make more enemies, but in the last analysis the enemies of the police department will become its friends."

The Mayor's message to the police does not merely tell them in general terms that they stand between the public and chaos, but promises them for themselves the kind of protection that they give to the public. Among other things he promises the policemen that with all the power of the city's government he will make it dangerous for criminals that have killed so many Chicago police in recent years.

The Mayor says:

> Your chief and I have discussed what to me is the most important of all: To have every criminal understand that no man can kill a Chicago policeman and get away with it. I don't care how important other work there is, I shall always stand for the principle that whenever a crook slays any policeman in Chicago, you use every man in the department until you get him. This is not revenge, but for the protection of every man who travels beat, as well as a square deal to the man who lost his life. Of course, I do not want you to take life unnecessarily, but I want you to know that when you are dealing with a desperate criminal, who you know will shoot to kill, you need never take any chances, and I will fight for you to the finish.

Main 13 is a practical magazine. Its advertisements tell policemen where they can get uniforms well made and at a cheap price. Its editorials and special articles deal with matters in which policemen are actually interested.

The police superintendent, Mr. Fitzmorris, is to be congratulated on this police "organ." Its success is certain, for Superintendent Fitzmorris was a good newspaperman before he was a police superintendent, and he has, to help him in his work, the well-known Jack Lait as editor, and other competent assistants.

This editorial is published not to praise this particular magazine, so much as to call the attention of Mayors and police superintendents throughout the country to the good work that a magazine for policemen properly managed can do in creating esprit de corps and making the policeman's career seem worth while.

Wants Referendum on War

Senator Ladd Would Let People Decide

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

Senator Ladd of North Dakota proposes an amendment to our national Constitution which will provide that war shall not be declared by this country against another country except upon approval of the people of the United States by a vote on the referendum, unless we are invaded or about to be invaded.

This is the inevitable step toward the complete democratic control of our public affairs. If the American people should decide for themselves any question at all, it should be the question whether they shall begin to kill other people and submit themselves to being killed by other people. If the voters of the country ought to determine any question, then they ought to determine the question which concerns their very lives and the life of their country.

It is not an unprecedented or unusual power, nor would it be necessarily exercised in derogation of the military efficiency of the nation.

The voters of the greatest military nations of the ancient world exercised the power of declaring war. Athens, Sparta and Rome were the great militaristic countries of the ancient civilization, and their military power was the greatest while their democracy was the greatest, and it declined with the decline of democracy.

In Sparta, which was the most perfect example of a completely militarized nation, the Kings had no power to declare war, but were obliged to summon the voters to a great conclave where the question was debated and a vote was taken for peace or war. In their day none were a match for the Spartans.

We would have less war in this world if those who have to fight them had the power to declare them. What we want is to preserve military efficiency and military preparation so that there may be no danger of any unscrupulous nation declaring war against us because she thinks we cannot defend ourselves. Let us put the power of declaring war in the hands of the people to be exercised in the sacred seclusion of the secret ballot where no propaganda, no false pride, no jeering, no cry of cowardice can reach them, and where they will have the liberty to decide the fateful question on its merits with a full knowledge of what it means.

Then being prepared for war, if it is thrust upon us, we shall hold in our hands a sword that will probably never cut us.

The New Doctor

OBSERVE the medical gentleman in the background. He is a famous quack. His doses so weakened the patient that he almost died. And his bills were something awful. The new medico at the bedside doesn't give such strong drugs. He merely assists nature.

HERE ARE TWO LETTERS TO THINK OVER

Can It Be That They Reveal the Truth? Annie Laurie Declares That There Is Unreasonable Profit Somewhere Between Fruit Grower and the Consumer

By ANNIE LAURIE

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 5.—Here are two letters that ought to interest every man who's working hard to make a living for his family, every woman who's trying to keep down the family bills, every litle boy with a big appetite, every girl who's growing so fast that she's hungry most of the time, every farmer in the State of California and every man and woman who is interested in a square deal anyhow, anywhere, anytime:

Oakland, June 16.

To Annie Laurie:

Your article of June 14 is merely another great step toward removing a condition which this association is also trying to remove.

A Light Pack

The canners have "hog tied" the producers and are about to do the same thing to the consumers (again) by causing a light pack of this season's crop to be put up and then the dear public—the consumers—will please take note of the PRICES that said canners will ask for their canned goods this coming Fall and Winter, for the present prices are quite in line with those to be expected a few months hence, although somewhat lower than they will be.

In a recent tour of the peach-growing sections of this State I was told that there hasn't been a peach buyer sent out this year by the canners. Our men have personally called upon some of the largest canners in this State in the guise of "peach growers" and have been told by the officials of the canneries upon which they called that the prices to be paid for peaches this year would range from $27.50 to $35 per ton as against $87.50 to $120 per ton for the same crops the last couple of years. Production costs have been high, in fact so high that the growers are as near bankrupt as they have ever been, especially when they look at the prices that are to be paid this season and then for only a limited portion of their crop.

A piece of paper and a pencil will quickly show the absurdity of the prices being offered by the canners for this year's crops.

Cordially yours,
C. J. WELCH,
President.

San Leandro, June 14, 1921.

Annie Laurie:

I read your article today with deep interest, as it touches upon a point which is a very sore one with me and my neighbors.

I claim to raise the finest cherries that grow on trees, bar none. I have found by woeful experience that it is impossible to sell them in the San Francisco or Oakland market at a sufficient profit to pay more than a pittance over the expense of picking and handling.

As a consequence I am now shipping all my cherries to interior points, where I really get a profit. But some of my neighbors who are not situated so that they can adopt such a policy have fared so badly that they are letting the cherries hang on the trees rather than pick them for the benefit of the commission man, one of my neighbors stopped picking before more than half of his crop was off rather than take a chance in the local markets and he had the finest of black cherries.

The policy of some local commission men is to make false returns of sale prices, to short weigh your goods and to load unreasonable hullage charges onto the returns. When they are caught at these tricks it is a "bookkeeper's mistake" or "shrinkage" or "the goods arrived in poor condition" and were "dumped." I am creditably informed that one commission house which was reporting dumped goods was in reality selling to a cannery and converting the proceeds.

It is a shame that there is no public supervisor over the market through which the food supplies from the adjoining country districts pass into San Francisco. Such supervision would not be necessarily expensive and, if efficient, should eliminate many of the abuses of the manipulated market as it exists today. Anybody who could accomplish this work would be a public benefactor.

Yours for success,
EDWIN H. WILLIAMS.

"Interesting, if true"—as the man said when he saw the headlines in a sensational newspaper.

Are the things stated in these letters as facts—really true?

Is it possible that a fruit grower can get better money for his fruit in the little country towns than he can get right here in San Francisco, where we ought to have the best fruit at the best prices in the world?

Is it true that with the State fairly running over with fruit this Summer we're going to have to pay higher prices for canned fruit than we ever paid before, or at least as high as we paid during the war, when the government was buying up everything in sight?

Do you like to go down town and pay a big price for a handful of cherries when you know that right across the bay the farmers are letting the cherries rot on the trees because they can't get enough money for them to pay them to hire pickers?

Affects Us All

This sort of thing affects directly every man and woman in this State. It affects us all, first, in the things we have to eat; second, in the bills we have to pay, and, in the third place, anything that makes the farmers and produce raisers hard up makes for hard times for everybody. For when you get right down to it the whole prosperity of the community is based on the prosperity of the farmer.

Land is about the only real thing there is. When land doesn't amount to much, money is rather sure to be something like a bad joke.

If this sort of thing happens to the fruit right now, is it going to happen to the vegetables too?

What's the matter with the fruit and vegetable markets of San Francisco and Oakland? Who's getting all this money that comes between the man who raises the fruit and the vegetables and the man who buys them for his little family?

A reasonable profit—that we all expect, and that we're all willing to give. Is there an unreasonable one somewhere? According to the figures a fruit grower was giving me the other day, it begins to look as if there were.

When the canners offer $60 a ton for fruit and that same fruit retails in San Francisco at a rate of something very close to $400 a ton—it really does seem as if there were a pretty big leak somewhere.

I wonder if the State Market Bureau can't manage to look into this affair and do something about it before we're all tied up in a neat little box and it's too late to bother?

THE OLD TIMERS' CLUB

Do You Remember Way Back When—

A battle royal took place semi-weekly on the old Warren bridge between youngsters from the North End and Charlestown for "gang supremacy" which resulted in school teachers rounding up the culprits in different North End schools and punishing them by compelling each boy to be tidy in clothing and to have their shoes polished daily?—TOWNE.

SCIENTIST WRITES OF SUN-SPOT STORMS

By Garrett P. Serviss.

SOME of the recent utterances of astronomers and physicists concerning the effects of the solar storm that caused the great aurora and the accompanying magnetic disturbances recently indicate a return to a view which was strongly held in the last decades of the nineteenth century, namely, that from such outbreaks in the sun brief upsettings of the earth's magnetism are by no means the only, or the most serious, consequences, but that the character of entire seasons may be affected.

Sir Oliver Lodge, whose opinions on a subject of this kind are not to be confused in scientific currency with what he thinks about communications with the dead, goes so far as to suggest that the earth's vegetation this Summer may be stimulated by the remarkable electric current that hit us from the sun May 14 and 15. Also that solar influences may, as formerly believed, affect the periodic winds, such as the Indian monsoons.

Most Powerful

Sir Frank Dyson, the English astronomer royal, agrees with others that the electric disturbances on this occasion were the most powerful that have ever been recorded since competent means of noting such things have been in our possession.

He accepts the view that a great sunspot throws out immense streams of electrons that swiftly cross the 93,000,000 miles of apparently empty space separating the earth from the sun, and upon hitting our atmosphere produce luminous effects in the night sky, resembling those seen when an electric current is sent through the almost vacant space inside a Crooke's tube; while, by induction or otherwise, the magnetic State of the earth is altered, and astonishingly powerful ground currents are set owing, to the dismay of operators of all kinds of electromagnetic devices.

There is this interesting fact to be noted: The electric discharges from the sun appear to be concentrated in shafts that start from a great sun spot, or solar cyclone. Being transmitted in radial lines from the sun, they are not likely to encounter the earth, which is a very small mark as seen from the sun—not bigger than a quarter of a dollar at a distance of a thousand feet. A good many circumstances must then co-act in order that the shaft of electrons from a sun spot may strike the little earth.

One of the most important conditions is that the earth should be, at the time, nearly in the plane of the latitude of the spot on the sun, and since the earth's orbit is not very much inclined to the plane of the sun's equator, it follows that a spot in the sun's northern hemisphere is likely to send its stream of electrons too high, i. e., too far north, to touch the earth, while a spot in the southern hemisphere is similarly likely to fire its electric missiles too low, or too far south.

In Periods

Now, for some unknown reason, the spots on the sun, which come and go in periods of about eleven years on the average, begin in relatively high northern and southern latitudes and gradually draw in from both sides toward the equator. At the close of a sun spot period the spots break out within a few degrees of the equator. Manifestly, from what we have said above, this circumstance is favorable to the chances of a solar electric discharge hitting the earth.

Now, the spot that caused the great magnetic storm and aurora of May 14-15 was an end-of-the-period outbreak, and, in consequence, occurred not far from the solar equator, scattering its shot sufficiently to bring the earth within its target pattern.

WHAT ODDS OF LIFE DO YOU ASK?

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

WHAT odds do you ask of life? How much "punishment" can you stand, before you give up, and acknowledge defeat?

Or are you a member of the Heroic Guard that dies but never surrenders? That, you will recall, was what they reported regarding Napoleon's Old Guard, which was cut to pieces at Waterloo.

Certainly, our self-respect summons each of us to be a hero in the strife of life.

It is inspiring to note how gamely most folks fight on, undaunted by chance and circumstance, apparently determined to dispute victory even with death!

Moved to Wonder

Occassionally, you are moved to wonder that some persons are willing merely to continue to live; to say nothing of being ready to carry on the struggle with hostile conditions.

The classic example, with which all of us are familiar, is that of Job, whose story is told in the Bible, and whose name has become a symbol of patience and of the never-say-die spirit.

You will remember that Job was a righteous man, blessed with many children and rich with much substance. Then he fell upon evil days; his property was ruined and his children were destroyed. With pious resignation he accepted disaster, saying; the Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord.

In all this, Job sinned not!

Then he was smitten with sore boils. In her sympathetic resentment, Job's wife urged him to curse God and die. He rebuked her with the query: What? shall we receive good at the hand of God, and shall we not receive evil?

Interest in Job

What interests us about Job, in his biblical discussion of the problem of evil, is the fact that he retained his integrity, alike unspoiled by fortune and undefeated by disaster.

Though there are not many shining examples, like Job, of absolutely unconquerable strength of spirit, it is remarkable how commonplace is this quality of fortitude.

So many you see, handicapped by disease or poverty or suffering, or otherwise visited by far more than their share of the thousand natural shocks that flesh is heir to, and yet—they do not care to shuffle off this mortal coil, despite the agony that makes calamity of so long life.

Here you have one of the commonest and most impressive illustrations of man's ability to make a virtue of necessity.

In other words, we are courageous because we have to be.

Almost instinctively, we feel that we may as well bear bravely and beautifully what must somehow be borne.

And that, not because as Shakespeare suggests, that we would rather bear those ills we have than fly to others that we know not of, but because we would rather live than die; we would rather be a live dog than a dead lion: we would, at almost any price of pain, save loss of honor, pay for the privilege of mere life itself!

Fear of Death Lost

All that a man hath will he give for his life—says Satan to God, in conspiring against the integrity of Job.

Most of us have lost the fear of death because of any dread of something after death. That represents an intellectual triumph!

Better still, the race has gradually acquired the courage to live, however difficult life may be. And that represents a spiritual victory.
